relied on under the old system The controls gap enabled a surge in student visas and in 2009 an estimated 40 000 to 50 000 additional migrants came to the UK to work rather than study The Agency has had to spend the subsequent three years amending rules and procedures in an effort to reduce abuse This constant change has made it very difficult and costly for students and education institutions to keep up to date with the increasingly complex set of rules and guidance that has emerged The Government expected that clamping down on abuse of student visas would play a part in reducing net migration However the measurement of net migration is still based on inaccurate International Passenger Survey data The e Borders system for counting all migrants in and out of the UK will not be in place fully until 2015 at the earliest It would also be more informative to also report net migration statistics excluding students as a number of other comparable countries do
