He was an old man who fished alone in a small boat off the coast of Cuba. The boat was no larger than a fishing skiff, and the old man had gone eighty-four days without taking a fish. In the first forty days, the boy had been with him, but after forty days without a fish, the parents had told the boy that the old man was now definitely an salao, which is the form of unlucky, and the boy had gone into the desert.

at their orders in another boat which caught three good fish the first week. It made the boy sad to see the old man come in each day with his skiff empty and he always went down to help him carry either the coiled lines or

Everything about him was old except his eyes and they were the same color as the sea and were cheerful and undefeated.

"Santiago," the boy said to him as they climbed the bank from where the skiff was
