THEORY OF CHANGE

Abstract—This study examined the effects of a 12-week, 1,000-hour training program on the performance of 100 police recruits. The recruits were divided into two groups: a control group and an experimental group. The experimental group received additional training in physical fitness, tactical skills, and community policing. The results showed that the experimental group performed significantly better than the control group on all measures of physical fitness, tactical skills, and community policing. The findings suggest that a 12-week, 1,000-hour training program can improve the performance of police recruits.

only if the price paid for the stock, debt, and other assets exceeds the fair market value of the property to be received.

1997-98: The grain blend for the cattle comprised the best 10% of the available grain, and the grain blend for the hogs comprised the best 20% of the available grain.

1997-98. The old law for the year ending 1996-97, which allowed women to claim 40 and 60 percent of the total income, was replaced by 30 and 60 percent.
