

All questions must be answered in the exam booklets, not on this copy. If you write rough drafts of answers, or decide to rewrite an answer, be sure you clearly indicate which answer you wish to have marked. Please note that for all questions, full marks will only be given to answers that are correct, complete, and clearly written.

1. Alberta Vegetable Producers Cooperative Data Model (40 marks)

The Alberta Vegetable Producers Cooperative (AVPC) functions as a marketing board, selling produce from farmers to grocery stores, restaurants, and other customers. Alberta vegetable producers own the AVPC. Each producer makes regular deliveries of produce to the distribution centre during the normal growing season. This can include tomatoes, carrots, potatoes, lettuce, spinach and many other vegetables. The AVPC then delivers the produce to its customers. They have an Accounting System in place, but it does not record the operational details of the business. You have been asked to prepare a data model for a new operations system, but you can ignore the Accounting System. While the basic business is simple, there are some complications that must be considered.

The first problem is ensuring the right quantities of each crop. If there are too many tomatoes, for example, prices will fall and all producers suffer. If there are shortages, the AVPC will receive a higher price but less total revenue than if demand could be met. To help resolve this problem, each producer is assigned a quota for each crop before planting begins. These quotas are part of a signed contract between each producer and the AVPC. Producers may fall short, and often do, due to unforeseeable circumstances. Some also produce surpluses. But the AVPC is only committed to purchasing the quota amount and the producer is not allowed to compete and sell any crop (particularly surpluses) privately. Of course, sometimes the AVPC is more than willing to purchase the surplus if others have fallen short or demand is higher than expected.

The quotas are determined by the AVPC, based on a past history of quotas and amounts produced. A producer cannot simply sign a contract for very large amounts and thus be guaranteed a market. Increases over previous years' quotas are only granted when either an increase in demand is expected or other producers are reducing their quota of the crop. A producer may be forced to accept a decreased quota after falling short for several years in a row.

Each crop has a weekly price, usually high initially, dropping to its lowest point when the crop is plentiful, and then rising as the season ends. Quality is also a factor in the price, but to simplify the model you can assume that all produce has identical quality. The customers receive a bill with the delivery that shows the current price of each item. There is no GST on food shipments. Payments are due within 30 days and are usually paid by cheque. Some customers bring cash to the office. Payments often cover multiple shipments and sometimes don't even identify the shipments. Direct deposit payments through banks are being considered but are not yet supported. Payments are recorded in this operational system, and then again in their Accounting System. The operations system should know if customers are overdue in making payments.

The system generates a receipt for the producer showing what was received and the amount owing for the delivery. Producers receive an advance of half the selling price at the time of delivery. This amount is then transferred automatically to the Accounting System, which prints a
