Diplomatic Material Jason Dittmer, 2017-08-24 In Diplomatic Material Jason Dittmer offers a counterintuitive reading of foreign policy by tracing the ways that complex interactions between people and things shape the decisions and actions of diplomats and policymakers Bringing new materialism to bear on international relations Dittmer focuses not on what the state does in the world but on how the world operates within the state through the circulation of humans and nonhuman objects From examining how paper storage needs impacted the design of the British Foreign Office Building to discussing the 1953 NATO decision to adopt the 30 caliber bullet as the standard rifle ammunition Dittmer highlights the contingency of human agency within international relations In Dittmer's model which eschews stasis structural forces and historical trends in favor of dynamism and becoming the international community is less a coming together of states than it is a convergence of media things people and practices In this way Dittmer locates power in the unfolding of processes on the micro level thereby reconceptualizing our understandings of diplomacy and international relations Near and Far Waters Colin

Flint, 2024-07-30 Seapower has been a constant in world politics a tool through which powerful countries have policed the seas for commercial advantage Political geographer Colin Flint highlights the geography of seapower as a dynamic continual struggle to gain control of near waters those parts of the oceans close to a country's shoreline and far waters parts of the oceans beyond the horizon and that neighbor the shorelines of other countries A forceful and clarifying challenge to conventional accounts of geopolitics Near and Far Waters offers an accessible introduction to the combination of economic and political relations that are the reason behind and the result of the development of seapower to control near waters and project force into far waters Examining the histories of three naval powers the Netherlands Britain and the United States this book distills the past and present patterns of seapower and their tendency to trigger repercussive conflict and war Readers will gain an appreciation for how geopolitics works the importance of seapower in economic competition the motivations behind China's desire to become a global naval force and the risks of current and future wars Drawing on decades of experience Flint urges readers to take seriously the dilemma of near far waters as a context for an alternative understanding of global politics

Concrete Revolution Christopher Sneddon, 2015-09-25 Water may seem innocuous but as a universal necessity it inevitably intersects with politics when it comes to acquisition control and associated technologies While we know a great deal about the socioecological costs and benefits of modern dams we know far less about their political origins and ramifications In Concrete Revolution Christopher Sneddon offers a corrective a compelling historical account of the US Bureau of Reclamation's contributions to dam technology Cold War politics and the social and environmental adversity perpetuated by the US government in its pursuit of economic growth and geopolitical power Founded in 1902 the Bureau became enmeshed in the US State Department's push for geopolitical power following World War II a response to the Soviet Union's increasing global sway By offering technical and water resource management advice to the world's underdeveloped regions the Bureau found that it could not only provide them with economic assistance and the United States with investment opportunities but also forge alliances and shore up a country's global standing in the face of burgeoning communist influence Drawing on a number of international case studies from the Bureau's early forays into overseas development and the launch of its Foreign Activities Office in 1950 to the Blue Nile investigation in Ethiopia Concrete Revolution offers insights into this historic damming boom with vital implications for the present If Sneddon argues we can understand dams as both technical and political objects rather than instruments of impartial science we can better participate in current debates about large dams and river basin planning

Professional Development in Online Teaching and Learning in Technical Communication Beth L. Hewett, Tiffany Bourelle, 2020-05-18 Technical communication instructors need professional development opportunities that will aid them in creating their online courses in developing curricula and in teaching in what may be a new environment. Although instructors can turn to instructional design teams for assistance in using Learning Management System and its functions, they specifically need their own first-hand immersive learning within their pedagogical training. In other words, teachers need to learn in an online context like the environment that their students will use. Such direct training helps instructors to facilitate student learning in a technologically distributed classroom. Beyond learning technological skills to facilitate a course, these teachers need to learn to use the technology effectively to keep students on track and to teach them skills and material. This collection, which includes three contributions from 2007 and 10 from 2017, focuses on the types of professional development instructors need to be successful in the online technical communication classroom. Formed as a 10-year retrospective of the field and its advances in online education, professional development, the book offers instructors theoretical and practical suggestions for creating and teaching successful online courses and managing entire online technical communication programs. This book was originally published as a special issue of Technical Communication Quarterly (TCQ).

The Geographies of Garbage Governance Anna R. Davies, 2016-03-03 Previously perceived as a local technical issue for governments, waste management is now also a global socio-political process involving complex patterns of multi-level governance. Yet these geographical complexities have not previously been considered in any detail. This book examines the neglected geographies of waste management, in particular the integral processes of trans-localization and politicization that are emerging in waste networks. Illustrated by in-depth case studies from New Zealand and Ireland, it critically analyzes the interaction between political scales of governing waste from the local to the supra-national level. It also looks at the impact of wider systems of governance, civil society, and the private sector on waste management policy and practices. In doing so, the book provides a better understanding of waste governance and recommendations for better management of the waste sector in the future.

The Challenge of Inter-legality Jan Klabbers, Gianluigi Palombella, 2019-05-30 The first book-length treatment to describe and explain how legal orders can be interwoven and what to do about it. The volume discusses inter-legality in different legal fields, situates it within political and legal theory, and provides a normative assessment.

Digital Diasporas Radhika Gajjala, 2019-06-26 When we work or play through digital technologies, we also live in them. Communities form, conversations and social movements emerge spontaneously and through careful offline planning. While we have used disembodied communication and transportation technologies in the past and still do, we have never before actually synchronously inhabited these communicative spaces, routes, and networks in quite the way we do now. Digital Diasporas engages conversations across a selection of contemporary, gendered Indian-identified networks online. Desis creating place through labour and affective network formation in second-life. Indian diasporic women engaged in digital domesticity. To Indian digital feminists engaged in debate and dialogue through Twitter. Through particular conversations and ethnographic journeys and linking back to personal and South Asian histories of Internet mediation Gajjala and her co authors reveal how affect and gendered digital labour combine in the formation of global socio economic environment Drinking Dilemmas Thomas Thurnell-Read,2015-12-14 Drinking and drunkenness have become a focal point for political and media debates to contest notions of responsibility discipline and risk yet at the same time academic studies have highlighted the positive aspects of drinking in relation to sociability belonging and identity These issues are at the heart of this volume which brings together the work of academics and researchers exploring social and cultural aspects of contemporary drinking practices These drinking practices are enormously varied and are spatially and culturally defined The contributions to the volume draw on research settings from across the UK and beyond to demonstrate both the complexity and diversity of drinking subjectivities and practices Across these examples tensions relating to gender social class age and the life course are particularly prominent Rather than align to now long established moral discourses about what constitutes good and bad drinking sociological approaches to alcohol foreground the vivid lived nature of alcohol consumption and the associated experiences of drunkenness and intoxication In doing so the volume illuminates the controversial yet important social and cultural roles played by drink for individuals and groups across a range of social contexts Sustainability
