This extract focuses on the reasons for Lenin's New Economic Policy.

In March 1921 Lenin announced the end of War Communism and the inauguration of a New Economic Policy. The NEP was based on the following:

Requisitions from peasants were ended and a fixed tax in kind (grain) was substituted – which by 1924 had become a money tax. Once this tax was paid, the peasant was free to do what he liked with what remained. He could use it himself, sell it to the state or sell it on the open market which was now made legal. Private enterprise was allowed in trade and small-scale industry. Compulsory labour ceased; labour armies were stopped; bonuses were introduced for extra work. The currency was back on a sound footing and a regular system of taxation was introduced. Large-scale industry (coal, iron, steel, oil, electricity, railways) remained state-owned.

1.3 Refer to Source C.

1.3.1 Explain in your own words how Lenin's New Economic Policy was implemented.

(3)

The New Economic Policy was a drastic adaptation to the war communist policy, which allowed for a free market, private trade and enterprise. Private trade was no longer illegal, or government centralised. People paid a portion of their goods or income in the form of tax and were permitted to sell the rest on the open market. This stimulated the economy and encouraged economic growth.

1.3.2 In what ways was the New Economic Policy different to Lenin's ideal of a communist state? Support your answer with evidence from the source.

A communist state is one in which all individuals are equal. Under the NEP certain individuals profited more than others, which is a distinctly capitalist feature. This automatically created a sense of inequality and reduced the government's power and influence.

1.3.3 What was Lenin's intention for the state in creating the New Economic Policy?

It was Lenin's intention to recover the economy and to suppress peasant unrest, while still providing for the needs of the government.

American Fragments Daniel Diez Couch,2022-05-03 In the years between the independence of the colonies from Britain and the start of the Jacksonian age American readers consumed an enormous number of literary texts called fragments American Fragments recovers this archive of the romantic period to raise a set of pressing questions about the relationship between aesthetic and national realities What kind of artistic creation was a fragment And how and why did deliberately unfinished writing emerge alongside a country that was itself still unfinished Through discussions of eighteenth century transatlantic aesthetics the Revolutionary War seduction novels religious culture and the construction of authorship Daniel Diez Couch argues that the literary fragment was used as a means of representing individuals who did not fit neatly into the social fabric of the nation beggars prostitutes veterans and other ostracized figures These individuals did not have a secure place in designs for the country s future yet writers wielded the artistic form of the fragment as an apparatus for surveying their disputed positionality Time and again fragments asked what kind of identity marginalized individuals had and how fictionalized versions of their life stories influenced the sociopolitical circumstances of the emergent nation In their most progressive moments the writers of fragments depicted their subjects as being in process opting for a fluid version of the self instead of the bounded and coherent one typically hailed as the liberal individual Traversing aesthetics political philosophy material culture and history American Fragments gives new life to a literary form that at once played a significant role in the print ecology of the early republic and that endures in the works of modernist and postmodernist writers and artists

A Cultural History of Money in the Modern Age Taylor C. Nelms,David Pedersen,2021-03-11 Bracketed by global financial crises and economic downturns the modern age has been defined by debates about and transformations of money The period witnessed the consolidation of national currencies and monetary policies as well as the diversification of payment technologies and the proliferation of financial instruments Throughout even as it appeared abstracted by finance and depoliticized by expert ideologies money was revealed again and again to be a powerful medium of cultural imagination and practical inventiveness as well as the site of public and political struggles Modern money both as a form of liquidity and as a claim on wealth remains deeply unsettled caught between private and public interests and subject to epic struggles over the infrastructures of value creation and circulation and their distributional consequences Drawing upon a wealth of visual and textual sources A Cultural History of Money in the Modern Age presents essays that examine key cultural case studies of the period on the themes of technologies ideas ritual and religion the everyday art and representation interpretation and the issues of the age

Lawrence, 2019-09-01 Many commentators tell us that in today's world everyday life has become selfish and atomised that individuals live only to consume But are they wrong In Me Me Me Jon Lawrence re tells the story of England since the Second World War through the eyes of ordinary people including his own parents to argue that in fact friendship family and place all remain central to our daily lives and whilst community has changed it is far from dead He shows how in the years after the Second World War people came increasingly to question custom and tradition as the pressure to conform to societal standards became intolerable And as soon as they could millions escaped the closed face to face communities of Victorian Britain where everyone knew your business But this was not a rejection of community per se but an attempt to find another new way of living which was better suited to the modern world Community has become personal and voluntary based on genuine affection rather than proximity or need We have never been better connected or able to sustain the relationships that matter to us Me Me Me makes that case that it's time we valued and nurtured these new groups rather than lamenting the loss of more real forms of community it is all too easy to hold on to a nostalgic view of the past Urban Emotions and the Making of the City Katie Barclay, Jade Riddle, 2021-04-06 This book brings together a vibrant interdisciplinary mix of scholars from anthropology architecture art history film studies fine art history literature linguistics and urban studies to explore the role of emotions in the making and remaking of the city By asking how urban boundaries are produced through and with emotion how emotional communities form and define themselves through urban space and how the emotional imaginings of urban spaces impact on histories identities and communities the volume advances our understanding of urban emotions into discussions of materiality power and embodiment across time and space Race and the Scottish Enlightenment Linda Andersson Burnett, Bruce Buchan, 2025-08-26 How colonialism shaped the Scottish Enlightenment's conception of race and humanity In the decades after 1750 an increasing number of former medical students from the University of Edinburgh construed humanity as a subject of both intellectual curiosity and colonial interest They drew on a shared educational background blending medicine with natural history and moral philosophy in a range of encounters with non European and Indigenous peoples across the globe whom they began to classify as races Focusing on a surprising number of these understudied students this book reveals the gradual predominance of race in Scottish Enlightenment thought Teaching provided a toolbox of concepts and theories for students who went on to careers as military and naval surgeons colonial administrators and natural historians While some such as Mungo Park who traveled in Africa are well known many others such as the long term residents in the Russian Empire Matthew Guthrie and his wife Maria Guthrie or the Caribbean botanist Alexander Anderson are less remembered Among this group were those such as the Pacific traveler Archibald Menzies and the circumnavigator of Australia Robert Brown who are known primarily as botanists rather than as ethnographers Together they formed a global network of colonial travelers and natural historians sharing a common educational background and a growing interest in race

Rural Wage Employment in Developing Countries

Carlos Oya, Nicola Pontara, 2015-05-22 There is a striking scarcity of work conducted on rural labour markets in the developing world particularly in Africa This book aims to fill this gap by bringing together a group of contributors who boast substantial field experience researching rural wage employment in various developing countries It provides critical perspectives on mainstream approaches to rural agrarian development and analysis of agrarian change and rural transformations from a long term perspective This book challenges the notion that rural areas in low and middle income countries are dominated by self employment It purports that this conventional view is largely due to the application of conceptual frameworks and statistical conventions that are ill equipped to capture labour market participation The contributions in this book offer a variety of methodological lessons for the study of rural labour markets focusing in particular on the use of mixed methods in micro level field research and more emphasis on capturing occupation multiplicity The emphasis on context history and specific configurations of power relations affecting rural labour market outcomes are key and reoccurring features of this book This analysis will help readers think about policy options to improve the quantity and quality of rural wage employment their impact on the poorest rural people and their political feasibility in each context

Big and Little Histories

Marnie Hughes-Warrington, Anne Martin, 2021-08-19 This book introduces students to ethics in historiography through an exploration of how historians in different times and places have explained how history ought to be written and how those views relate to different understandings of ethics No two histories are the same The book argues that this is a good thing because the differences between histories are largely a matter of ethics Looking to histories made across the world and from ancient times until today readers are introduced to a wide variety of approaches to the ethics of history including well known ethical approaches such as the virtue ethics of universal historians and utilitarian approaches to collective biography writing while also discovering new and emerging ideas in the ethics of history Through these approaches readers are encouraged to challenge their ideas about whether humans are separate from other living and non living things and whether machines and animals can write histories The book looks to the fundamental questions posed about the nature of history making by Indigenous history makers and asks whether the ethics at play in the global variety of histories might be better appreciated in professional codes of conduct and approaches to research ethics management Opening up the topic of ethics to show how historians might have viewed ethics differently in the past the book requires no background in ethics or history theory and is open to all of those with an interest in how we think about good histories
