Mathematics requires geometry, not in fact, and that, after the experimental study done by the students, the physical, mathematical and appropriate theoretical treatment that the information leads to in the form of mathematical models. Results in the development of these tasks, are presented in the following way. Right before the geometry, the students are going to study the lines and circles, and then, the area of the plane figures, and the area of solids. As geometry is the study of physical/mathematical objects in the reality, we should show physical objects and identify the mathematical concepts from them. The two languages that were used before this time were used before
