Dear _____ :

Per our lease agreement, your move-out notice must be received 30 days prior to vacating.

The general rule—per our contract—is that if we are unable to lease the residence in the period that you are still under contract, you are obligated to pay that rent. Also, once you have moved out from the residence, it will be inspected for cleanliness and damage. If the residence is left in good condition, your security deposit will be returned to you in full—provided you do not owe back rent or miscellaneous expenses. In such cases, the monies will go toward these expenses, and the difference will be released to you.

Please review the Move-Out Checklist, which you received when you moved in—give each item your personal attention before departing.

Please contact the utility services, and phone and cable companies to disconnect all services in your name to avoid being billed for unneeded services.

It has been wonderful having you as a tenant and we wish you many years of happiness in your new residence.

Sincerely,

Signature

Move Out Instructions Reminder Letter:

The Accidental Landlord Danielle Babb, PhD, MBA, 2008-10 Don't feel like selling your house for less than you paid for it. Need to move but can't because you're unable to find a buyer for your home. Join one of the fastest growing groups this side of the real estate bubble: the accidental landlord. The low interest rates and double digit appreciation in the housing market a few years ago have given way to declining home prices, higher rates, more foreclosures, and higher credit standards. Homeowners who need to relocate or want to move are finding it impossible to do so without taking a loss. Many are considering renting their homes until the market rebounds, and this book is for them. The Accidental Landlord helps readers determine if renting is a viable option and if it is, how to go about the process of being a landlord until it makes sense to sell. In it, readers will learn how to determine if it makes financial sense to rent, assess whether or not they have what it takes to be a landlord, decide between the various rental options available, explore different types of rental agreements and decide which is best, prepare the home to be rented, decide if it makes sense to work with a property management company, identify potential renters and market the property, evaluate prospective tenants, collect rent, pay taxes, and change insurance coverage. Manage the property and tenants, deal with problems that surface, decide when it's time to sell. Every
