

Galaxy Classification and Evolution

The word "galaxy," having been used in English since the fourteenth century, is as old as this language. Galaxy was derived from the French, Greek, and Latin words for milk. To pre-industrial people, lacking bright lights, the Milky Way, a band of diffuse light stretching across the dark sky, would have been as familiar as the planets and the Moon. This band of stars completely encircles Earth. It is the disk of our Galaxy seen from the inside (but not the center). With unaided eyes one other galaxy can be seen in the northern sky, the Andromeda nebulae, as it was called before its true nature was known. It is a faint fuzzy patch in the region of the sky containing the stars of the constellation Andromeda. Two galaxies, the Large and Small Magellanic Clouds, can be seen with unaided eyes in the southern sky from south of about 10 degrees north latitude. The Magellanic Clouds were described by sailors from Magellan's voyage, and are now known to be small irregular galaxies, that orbit the Milky Way. Our Sun and all of the individual stars that can be seen with unaided eyes from Earth are part of the Milky Way.

Immanuel Kant (1724-1804) speculated that the faint patches of light, which improved telescopes revealed in large numbers, were "...island universes - in other words, Milky Ways..." Astronomers of the eighteenth century identified celestial objects as being either stellar or non-stellar, with the second category including gaseous nebulae, planetary nebulae, hazy star clusters, and faint lens-shaped formations. If these objects were nearby, with distances comparable to those of observable stars, they would have to be luminous clouds of gas within our Galaxy. If they were very remote, far beyond the foreground stars of the Galaxy, they would be systems containing billions of stars. Kant's speculation was rejected for over 150 years. Edwin Hubble published a paper in 1929, "A Spiral Nebula as a Stellar System," which showed that the fuzzy patch in the constellation Andromeda is a system of numerous individual stars, star clusters, and dust clouds. The Andromeda galaxy, as it is now known, is 2 million light-years away, and is the nearest spiral galaxy to the Milky Way. Hubble also proposed a classification scheme based entirely on the visual appearance of a galaxy on a photographic plate. His system has three basic categories: elliptical, spiral, and irregular galaxies. The elliptical and spiral galaxies are subdivided further, as illustrated below. This is known as the "Hubble Tuning Fork."
