Magee, Stacey A. Missmer, Jayashri Kulkarni, Vassiliki Benetou, Marianne Vidler, Chelsea Morroni, 2023-02-07 As a result of the Coronavirus disease COVID 19 pandemic the world is facing one of the greatest challenges we have experienced in over a century The economic consequences for society at large are potentially catastrophic The health and social care sectors have reacted by providing emergency care on an unprecedented scale while the scientific community has focused on developing new treatments and a vaccine to prevent future waves of the pandemic Evidence is emerging to suggest that certain conditions such as obesity and hypertension predispose some individuals to a worse outcome if they become infected and that women may be less likely to die from COVID 19 than men It is also currently believed that pregnant women are at no greater risk than the general population There is an urgent need to determine whether these early observations are correct Furthermore we need to be sure that pregnancy outcomes are not affected by COVID 19 and that SARS CoV 2 is not transmitted to the fetus during pregnancy or labour nor to the infant through breast milk There are so many questions that need to be answered to optimise care avoid harm reduce anxiety amongst women and their families and inform health professionals and policymakers We also need to understand the unintended consequences of the global lockdown on women's health in general For example have rates of domestic violence risen to what extent has women's mental health been affected and have women successfully adapted or devised new coping mechanisms have women been denied access to gynaecological treatments during the lockdown including safe abortion and if so with what impact on their health and wellbeing has the female work force suffered disproportionately in economic terms have national and international recommendations and policies been sufficiently gender neutral have breastfeeding rates been adversely affected will COVID 19 make attainment of the UN SDGs more difficult etc In keeping with the Scope Mission of Frontiers in Global Women's Health this Research Topic aims to provide a multi disciplinary platform to answer important COVID 19 related questions that specifically impact upon women's health and wellbeing particular in resource poor settings The Topic Editors welcome a broad range of contributions including Original Research Reviews Commentaries Study Protocols and Systematic Reviews We would like to acknowledge Dr Nathalie MacDermott and Dr Rhiannon George Carey who have acted as coordinators and have contributed to the preparation of the proposal for this Research Topic Given the exceptional nature of the COVID 19 situation Frontiers is waiving all article publishing charges for COVID 19 related research in this Research Topic Please note that manuscripts must be submitted by the deadline of December 31st

How can systems thinking contribute to solving key challenges in Global Health Global Health is an evolving field operating within a complex interaction of political environmental economic and socio cultural factors Any work on the subject needs to reflect current developments and be supported by a collaborative interdisciplinary approach that retains a focus on the underpinning determinants of health This book reflects the importance of applying a systems thinking approach to Global Health challenges one that examines both the individual elements within the system as well as the interrelationships between them and wider contextual patterns Bringing together a global and multidisciplinary team of experts this volume outlines the core concepts of a systems thinking approach and how they can be applied to current Global Health problems It provides a comprehensive range of case studies reflections conceptual pieces and methodological approaches Readers are invited to engage with arguments and assumptions across global health interventions and to connect systems thinking theory with lived experiences Well established topics such as infectious and non communicable diseases as well as lesser discussed areas such as still birth mental health and war and conflict are united under a shared systems thinking framework Offering innovative perspectives on current health challenges students academics practitioners and policy makers will find this a significant resource to enhance their understanding and application of systems thinking in Global Health

Global Education in Bioethics Henk ten Have, 2018-06-14 This book presents and elaborates on how the teaching of global ethics in healthcare contributes to furthering ideals of cosmopolitanism solidarity equality respect for differences and concern with what human beings and specifically patients have in common regardless of where they live and who they are Global problems such as pandemic diseases disasters lack of care and medication homelessness and displacement call for global responses The new area of global bioethics is providing answers by arguing that ethical discourse should first of all criticize the structures of violence and injustice that underlie many threats to global health Education of health professionals should articulate that they are citizens of the world like their patients This book first demonstrates that a moral vision of global education is necessary to gain a global dimension It is argued that a global framework of ethical principles is available the challenge is to elaborate and specify that framework into specific educational approaches and models The book subsequently analyzes goals and challenges of global education in biomedicine and healthcare It is shown how such challenges e g inequities and cultural differences can be overcome Finally the book presents concrete examples cases methods and practices of global education in bioethics The unique feature of the book is that it addresses global education challenges specifically in the area of healthcare medicine and medical science It combines two areas of research and experience that are usually not connected global bioethics and global education This book is written for all those involved in global ethics teaching in medicine nursing ethics philosophy law and theology courses

Researching Corporations and Global Health Governance Kelley Lee, Benjamin Hawkins, 2016-12-12 The profound changes to the world economy since the late twentieth century have been characterised by a growth in the number and size of transnational corporations In this context there is now increasing evidence of unprecedented reversals in health indicators among populations around the world Research in this area has focused on documenting the global health impacts arising from the economic activity of corporations The challenge for public health researchers is to understand the ways in which corporations are regulated by and participate in global health governance and implications for health and well being across the globe This book is an introductory guide to conducting research on the role of corporations in global health governance from a range of disciplinary perspectives and gives an overview of different approaches methodologies and data sources Also for case studies providing interdisciplinary empirical analysis of the impact of corporations on global health and global health governance see the partner volume <http://www.rowmaninternational.com/books/case-studies-on-corporations-and-global-health-governance>
