

1. Introduction The purpose of this study is to investigate the effects of a new educational program on student learning outcomes. The program is designed to enhance critical thinking and problem-solving skills through a series of interactive modules.	2. Methodology The study employed a quasi-experimental design, comparing the performance of two groups of students: the control group and the experimental group. Data was collected through pre-tests, post-tests, and a series of formative assessments.	3. Results The results of the study indicate that the experimental group, which participated in the new program, showed significantly higher scores on the post-test compared to the control group. This suggests that the program was effective in improving learning outcomes.	4. Conclusion Based on the findings, it can be concluded that the new educational program has a positive impact on student learning. The program's focus on interactive learning and critical thinking appears to be a successful approach for enhancing educational outcomes.	5. References Smith, J. (2018). Effective Teaching Strategies. New York: Education Press. Johnson, A. (2019). Assessment in the 21st Century. London: Academic Publishers.	6. Appendix A Sample questions from the pre-test and post-test are provided in this appendix. These questions were used to measure the students' understanding of the concepts covered in the program.	7. Appendix B A detailed description of the program's modules and activities is included here. This section provides a comprehensive overview of the curriculum and the various learning experiences offered to the students.	8. Appendix C Additional data and statistical analysis are presented in this appendix. This section includes detailed tables of scores and a thorough explanation of the statistical methods used to analyze the data.	9. Appendix D Feedback from the students and teachers is provided in this appendix. These comments offer valuable insights into the program's strengths and areas for improvement, helping to refine the educational experience.	10. Conclusion The study concludes that the new educational program is a promising approach for improving student learning. Further research is needed to explore the long-term effects of the program and to identify ways to optimize its implementation.
