

Chapter 15:

What is Freedom?

- End of civil war in 1865
- Destruction of slavery

Blacks and the Meaning of Freedom:

- Shaped by their experiences as slaves, watching the free society around them
- Freedom meant escaping the injustices of slavery:
- Beatings
- Separation of families
- Denial of access to education
- Sexual exploitation
- They held mass meetings and religious services without whites
- Acquired dogs, guns and liquor which was banned to them under slavery
- They didn't have to get permission to travel, so former slaves left plantations
- Many moves to southern towns and cities

Families in Freedom:

- Institutions were expanded and freed from white supervision
- Family was central to the black community
- Widows of black soldiers claimed survivors' pensions
- Increased power of black men and brought to many black families the notion that men and women should inhabit separate spheres
- Planters complained that freedwomen had withdrawn from field labor and work as house servants
- Black women preferred to devote more time to their families
- Men considered it a badge of honor to see their wives remain at home
- Poverty of the black community would compel a far higher proportion of black women than white women to go to work for wages

Church and School:

- Blacks started creating churches of their own
- These churches also housed schools, social events, and political gatherings
- Many blacks went to schools established by northern missionary societies, Freedman's Bureau and groups of ex-slaves

Political Freedom:

- Right to vote became central to former slaves
- They came together in conventions, parades, and petition drives to demand the right to vote and organize their own freedom ballots

Land, Labor, and Freedom:

- Former slaves idea of freedom was related to landownership
- They believed they acquired a right to land that they worked for
