The Roads of the Roman Empire

10/10/2020

Assignment about the geography and history of the Roman Empire and the question of the roads.

The Roman Empire made roads a very important part of its infrastructure. Roads were built to connect the different parts of the empire and to facilitate the movement of goods and people. The Roman road network was one of the most advanced in the world at the time. It was built using a system of straight lines and right angles, which made it easy to travel along. The roads were also built with a hard surface, which made them durable and able to withstand heavy traffic. The Roman road network was a key factor in the success of the empire, as it allowed for the efficient movement of troops and supplies. The roads were also used for trade and communication, and they played a major role in the development of the Roman Empire. The Roman road network was a testament to the engineering and organizational skills of the Romans. It was a system that was built to last, and it has left a lasting legacy on the world.
