Religion and the Early Modern British Marketplace Kristin M.S. Bezio,Scott Oldenburg,2021-11-29 Religion and the Early Modern British Marketplace explores the complex intersection between the geographic material and ideological marketplaces through the lens of religious belief and practice By examining the religiously motivated markets and marketplace practices in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries in England Scotland and Wales the volume presents religious praxis as a driving force in the formulation and everyday workings of the social and economic markets Within the volume the authors address first spiritual markets and marketplaces discussing the intersection of Puritan and Protestant Ethics with the market economy The second part addresses material marketplaces including the marriage market commercial trade markets and the post Reformation Catholic black market In the third part of the volume the chapters focus specifically on publication markets and books including manuscripts and commonplace books as well as printed volumes and pamphlets Finally the volume concludes with an examination of the literary marketplace with analyses of plays and poems which engage with and depict both spiritual and material markets Taken as a whole this collection posits that the modern conception of a division between religion and the socioeconomic marketplace was a largely fictional construct and the chapters demonstrate the depth to which both were integrated in early modern life

Gift of Submission Allie Blocker, 2014-12-23 Gelisa is mine She has been for four years now I haven't touched her not yet I want her to come to me I want her complete and utter surrender All she has to do is say the words and I will give her the world But my little Gelisa is a stubborn minx It is going to take some doing to get her submission So I've decided to force her hand I'm taking her to my cabin just five days before Christmas I have five days to get her verbal submission And I will get it EXCERPT The little minx has risen to her feet as she's speaking an intimidating five foot one and a half inches taking a few steps in my direction Not nearly close enough Happy to oblige her I close the gap slowly walking forward until I am towering over her My adorable little pixie woman Although the top of her head barely reaches my chest she is lush with generous curves The short bobbed haircut she recently traded her braids for frames her russet heart shaped face It makes her look like a fierce fairy I like that very much her fierceness She isn't a woman easily broken which is perfect as I have no desire to break her Challenge her yes take her to the absolute edge of endurance absolutely But slaves don't do it for me At one time that wasn't so but I have learned so much more about myself since then I desire no I require a submissive one that will challenge me as much as I challenge her Gelisa Parker is the woman my exacting standards demand All I need to do is show her then claim her The law does not pause for the holidays Miss Parker I lean down so our faces are mere inches apart allowing all my pent up desire to shine in my eyes as I stare unblinking into hers The gasp that rushes out in an audible breath isn't the only indication she sees what I am feeling clearly Those almond shaped eyes widen her juicy lips parting ever so slightly They look delicious I really need to taste them Soon but not yet Not until she fully understands what I require of her It is imperative she knows what is to be the nature of our relationship And there is absolutely no doubt there will be a relationship Ummm am I interrupting something The idiot on the couch has the gross misfortune of speaking Sighing is a woman's weapon as much as tears are Yet I allow one to escape Centuries ago I would've been able to murder him with impunity Such a curse to be born in modern times Yes you are I inform him fast losing my patience Run along now Gelisa he dares to question my woman I have to turn my head to face him which thoroughly pisses me off I don't want to look at his weasely face I could gleefully strangle the tosser at this point You will leave I speak in a clear measured tone lest he fail to comprehend You can go on your own or I can make you Your choice

Designing Your Dream Husband Amie Dockery, 2004-10-07 God has given women a gift that is so woven into their nature that they approach everything from homes to husbands with the thought Wow I could do great things with that To see potential is a great good but the downside is the propensity to compare reality with the expectation This is especially harmful in marriage if a woman tries to show her husband his potential in all the wrong ways such as comparison or suggestions for change So how does a wife encourage her husband to become what God has placed within him to be It requires an understanding of her own need for repentance and restoration as well as working with the right team and the right tools The right team is God as architect Jesus as supplier and the Holy Spirit as builder The right tools include prayer declaration and action that bring restoration and that also reveal her own need to change Each chapter explores a case study of a biblical character's life an action that gained him authority an area of vulnerability and the most memorable moment this person wore the mantle Each chapter also includes a pattern for prayer questions from which a woman can build the blueprint for repentance restoration and declaration Personal application includes Putting Your Words to Work a written vision declaration and a Seal it with a Gift with practical ways to gently yet generously introduce revelation of a husband's skills and abilities through a tangible gift

Gifts of Clothing in Late Antique Literature Nikki Rollason, 2016-07-15 Both clothing and gifts in the ancient world have separately been the subject of much scholarly discussion because they were an integral part of Greek and Roman society and identity creating and reinforcing the relationships which kept a community together as well as delineating status and even symbolising society as a whole They have however rarely been studied together despite the prevalence of clothing gifts in many ancient texts This book addresses a gap in scholarship by focusing on gifts of elite male clothing in late antique literature in order to show that when they appeared in texts these items were not only functioning in an historical or real life sphere but also as a literary space within which authors could discuss ideas of social relationships and authority This book suggests that authors used items which usually formed part of the costume of authority of the period the trabea of the consul the chlamys of the imperial court and the emperor and the pallium of the Christian bishops to over write wearers and donors as confident figures of official authority when this may have been open to doubt

Represented Communities John D. Kelly,Martha Kaplan,2001-09 In 1983 Benedict Anderson s Imagined Communities revolutionized the anthropology of nationalism Anderson argued that print capitalism fostered nations as imagined communities in a modular form that became the culture of modernity Now in Represented Communities John D Kelly and Martha Kaplan offer an extensive and devastating critique of Anderson s depictions of colonial history his comparative method and his political anthropology The authors build a forceful argument around events in Fiji from World War II to the 2000 coups showing how focus on imagined communities underestimates colonial history and obscures the struggle over legal rights and political representation in postcolonial nation states They show that the self determining nation state actually emerged with the postwar construction of the United Nations fundamentally changing the politics of representation Sophisticated and impassioned this book will further anthropology s contribution to the understanding of contemporary nationalisms

The Obedience Paradox Mary Stanford,2022-08-26 Few concepts in Christianity are more misunderstood than obedience Words like submissive subject and obedient can appear utterly incompatible with the fundamental equality that Jesus offers to us in baptism Yet headship and obedience within marriage has been preached authoritatively throughout the Church s history When properly understood and lived out obedience is in fact liberating The Obedience Paradox illuminates the subject by examining the relationship between husband and wife in marriage as an image of Christ's relationship to the Church Presenting the sexual complementarity of husband and wife as an expression of gift this book probes the meaning and power of receptivity in a relationship While a marriage certainly involves mutual giving and receiving a husband most authentically lives headship when he acts as a generous giver towards his wife Correspondingly a wife practices authentic obedience when she graciously receives of her husband's self gift Understanding obedience as the free reception of a gift unveils its unique potential to make us more free and to bring about deeper spiritual union between persons both human and divine Modern Catholics often have difficulty identifying with traditional concepts of masculinity femininity and marriage Rather than gloss over these seemingly troublesome categories Mary Stanford offers a new path forward In her novel exploration of the true meaning of obedience Mary reveals the freedom God offers to men and women in their vocations as loving wives and husbands Fr Patrick Mary Briscoe OP editor in chief of Aleteia Mary's book is fresh and delightful provocative and persuasive She blends biblical and theological knowledge with wisdom derived from attentiveness to the practicalities of married life and with impressive insight into the male and female psyches She writes so beautifully that one wants to pause regularly just to appreciate her phrasing as well as her illuminating concepts This book makes a true contribution to the ever vexing question of right relationships between spouses It explains well the importance of freedom and trust involved in women lovingly submitting to their husbands in marriages dedicated to following Christ in all things Janet E Smith Ph D Father McGivney Chair of Life Ethics retired Sacred Heart Major Seminary Detroit MI author of Humanae Vitae A Generation Later and A Right to Privacy For our culture perhaps the greatest stumbling block in the Catholic faith is its emphasis on obedience Not only the faithful's obedience to God and his Church but also and primarily the Son's obedience to the Father Drawing from the Church's Tradition and Pope Saint John Paul II's writings in particular Mary Stanford brings out both the beauty and the challenge of obedience in God's highest natural creation the family Her work will benefit engaged and married couples in particular and all who desire to deepen their appreciation of this great paradox the obedience that frees and ennoble The Very Rev Paul D Scalia Episcopal Vicar for Clergy Diocese of Arlington author of That Nothing May Be Lost Any couple new to marriage or old would do well to consider the exposition of Scripture and Tradition set forth by Mary Stanford as well as her enlivening exposition of theological ideas in a contemporary setting The volatile aspects of marriage are given ballast from Stanford's pondering that most weighty matter How to bring concord between two hearts bound in the Sacrament to mutual service and devotion and yet part of a human world of passion and weariness In effect Mary Stanford dares to ask the question of how marriage can work Bolder still she attempts an answer William Fahey Ph D President Thomas More College of Liberal Arts This book opens a new way to understand obedience in marriage and in the Faith As such Mary Stanford rescues the subject from much of its contemporary bad psychology Very important and highly recommended Paul C Vitz Senior Scholar Professor Divine Mercy University Professor of Psychology Emeritus New York University There was a time when the words love honor and obey were standard fare for marriage vows No longer Over the years the word obey mistakenly became synonymous with the word slavery thus offending our modern sensibilities Consequently it has been replaced with more generic words such as cherish or respect In The Obedience Paradox Finding True Freedom in Marriage Mary Stanford breathes new life into the word obedience arguing that obedience correctly understood is the ticket to authentic freedom Terry Polakovic author of Life and Love Opening Your Heart to God's Design and Women of Hope Doctors of the Church That true freedom is the fruit of obedience is paradoxical indeed But if obedience featured squarely in the saving action of Jesus and now the Church then it must also occupy the heart of the believer Mary Stanford shows for those with ears to hear how obedience leads to a life of freedom joy and holiness for all wives husbands clergy religious Christopher Carstens Office for Sacred Worship Diocese of La Crosse A work that combines courage and wisdom Mary Stanford's The Obedience Paradox successfully negotiates one of modern Catholicism's Third Rails This work is deep yet approachable an incarnational outworking of learned theology and lived praxis valuable for both clergy and laity but particularly for those preparing for marriage In it obedience and belief are recast in robust optimistic ways that mirror our bodily and spiritual realities This is a sensitive counter cultural affirmation of human dignity in light of modern efforts at dehumanization and depersonalization Donald Prudlo Warren Professor of Catholic Studies Department of Philosophy and Religion University of Tulsa Few today have the courage publicly to defend the hierarchical primacy of the husband and father Stanford does and she offers compelling and attractive arguments in defense of the beauty and wisdom of this teaching Christopher J Malloy Ph D Associate Professor of Theology University of Dallas author of False Mercy Recent Heresies Distorting Catholic Truth About the Author Mary Stanford is a speaker teacher and writer on Catholic marriage and family life She is an adjunct professor at Christendom College and has a master's degree in theological studies from the Pontifical John Paul II Institute for Studies on Marriage and Family She and her husband Trey have seven children
