Hrg. 109-188, July 21, 2005, 109-1 Hearings, , 2005 Nuclear Power and Energy Security Samuel Apikyan, David Diamond, 2009-10-13 The basic logic is very simple Countries around the globe have a need for more electrical generating capacity because of increases in population and increases in energy use per capita The needs are constrained by the requirement that the base load energy source be economical secure and not emit climate changing gases Nuclear power fits this description Therefore many countries that have not had a nuclear power program or only had a small program see a need to develop one in the future However the development of a national nuclear energy program is not so simple The purpose of the NATO Advanced Research Workshop on Nuclear Power and Energy Security was to contribute to our understanding of how these programs might evolve The workshop took place 26-29 May 2009 in Yerevan Armenia Approximately 50 participants discussed the infrastructure that is needed and some of the reactor options that might be considered The papers in this book helped define the discussion that took place The infrastructure that is needed includes a legal framework a functioning regulator a plan for waste disposal a plan for emergency response etc These needs were explained and just as importantly it was explained what international bilateral and regional cooperation is available Although there were many countries represented the Armenian experience was of particular interest because of where the meeting was located The papers on reactor options covered both innovative and evolutionary designs APAIS 1991: Australian public affairs information service, The Economics of Climate Change Great Britain: Parliament: House of Lords: Select Committee on Economic Affairs, 2005-07-06 The Environment-Conflict Nexus Francis Galgano, 2018-07-15 The aim of this book is to demonstrate how environmental factors have caused an evolution in the landscape of national security since the end of the Cold War Through relevant case studies the scope of the problem on the national security landscape due to environmental stressors is illuminated examined and synthesized with climate related data Human variables such as governance GDP and vulnerability are taken into account and are compared against environmental factors to more accurately determine the causative agents of regional conflicts which threaten national security These case studies comprise the majority of the text and they show how individual conflicts are uniquely influenced by environmental stress with variations from situation to situation This book will be of interest to government and military professionals and may serve as a resource for college courses in the areas of military geography international affairs and sustainability studies Research Handbook on Climate Change and Biodiversity Law
