Kenya Henry S. Bienen, 2015-03-08 Kenya has been the object of much controversy among students of African politics Some view it as one of the greatest successes of the post independence period others see it as an example of all that is wrong with African development Henry Bienen approaches this controversy by asking whether the concept of political participation has been properly understood in the African context His case study of political participation in Kenya discusses administration party politics ethnicity and class He suggests that in a system dominated by elites individuals and groups exert influence primarily through patron client networks and local administrative and party organs Local politics is the most important arena for most people it is argued As long as the regime adopts policies which maximize economic growth and take account of peasant middle and small holders and as long as individual representatives can be replaced even though no change of regime occurs

What Brexit Means Max Horder, 2024-12-06 What Brexit Means explores the rise of populism in Britain Drawing on several years of ethnographic fieldwork amongst ideologically committed Brexit activists it examines the discourse of populism across language culture politics psychology and cognition It explains how populism is expressed in terms of ritually renewing social order and solidarity Rejecting the notion that the territory of populism studies belongs to political science this book shows how it is in the realm of anthropology myth ritual alterity consciousness selfhood that we witness the most compelling examples of how a phenomena as modern as populism depends upon the same symbolic logics that we find in the premodern world What Brexit Means is a demonstration of the power of anthropology to explain momentous and poorly predicted transformations in the global order It will become a benchmark text for those eager for anthropology's contribution to understanding the political turbulence that is rocking the stability of Western democracies International Journal of
