

ANSWERS AND EXPLANATIONS

Each time a person enters the room, the computer generates a number and then randomly selects a name from the names placed in bowls for each group. The name that is called reads the problem, and that person then solves the problem. A new problem is then placed in the bowl and another name is called. This entire sequence is repeated for fifteen to twenty problems.

After the problems are all completed, each is read aloud. The group that has the greatest number of correct answers has a prize. Another problem is then given and the group that has the greatest number of correct answers has a prize. The winning group is then given a prize.

The teacher then divides the group into two groups. The teacher then gives the group a problem. The group that has the greatest number of correct answers has a prize.
