Speech-Language Pathologists in Early Childhood Intervention Kathleen D. Ross, 2017-11-01 Speech Language Pathologists in Early Childhood Intervention Working with Infants Toddlers Families and Other Care Providers presents practicing clinicians and graduate students with the skills necessary to provide evidence based best practice services to young clients struggling to gain

functional communication skills and their families. It also serves to broaden the understanding of early intervention within the field of speech language pathology. Through research, real life scenarios and practical documents, the text presents positive advocacy for this population. The text begins with a general overview of the history and rationale for early childhood intervention, including the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) Part C program and Early Head Start, as well as a description of the need for speech language pathologists in early intervention. The majority of the text offers assessment and intervention strategies and tools, including specific tests and curricula, training resources, and the importance of using ongoing assessment for this young age. Strategies for coaching parents and collaborating with professional colleagues, as well as working within daily routines in natural environments for the child, are all integral components of the Part C early intervention program and are interwoven throughout. The text concludes with the importance of viewing children holistically, taking into consideration all aspects of a child's being, and acknowledging the interrelatedness of their developing skills, as well as the importance of family in their development. Speech language pathologists have a critical role in evaluation, assessment, and intervention for young children with or at risk for communication disorders. Speech Language Pathologists in Early Childhood Intervention creates a pathway for investing in the principles and activities of early intervention that can lead to best practice and positive outcomes for this young population. Disclaimer: Please note that ancillary content such as documents, audio, and video, etc., may not be included as published in the original print version of this book.

Brown, Elspeth McCartney, 1984      Numerical Development - From cognitive functions to neural underpinnings Korbinian Moeller, Elise Klein, Klaus F Willmes - von Hinckeldey, Karin Kucian, 2015-02-24

Living at the beginning of the 21st century requires being numerate because numerical abilities are not only essential for life prospects of individuals but also for economic interests of post industrial knowledge societies Thus numerical development is at the core of both individual as well as societal interests There is the notion that we are already born with a very basic ability to deal with small numerosities Yet this often called number sense seems to be very restricted approximate and driven by perceptual constraints During our numerical development in formal e g school but also informal contexts e g family street we acquire culturally developed abstract symbol systems to represent exact numerosities in particular number words and Arabic digits refining our numerical capabilities In recent years numerical development has gained increasing research interest documented in a growing number of behavioural neuro scientific educational cross cultural and neuropsychological studies addressing this issue Additionally our understanding of how numerical competencies develop has also benefitted considerably from the advent of different neuro imaging techniques allowing for an evaluation of developmental changes in the human brain In sum we are now starting to put together a more and more coherent picture of how numerical competencies develop and how this development is associated with neural changes as well In the end this knowledge might also lead to a better understanding of the reasons for atypical numerical development which often has grievous consequences for those who suffer from developmental dyscalculia or mathematics learning disabilities Therefore this Research Topic deals with all aspects of numerical development findings from behavioural performance to underlying neural substrates from cross sectional to longitudinal evaluations from healthy to clinical populations To this end we included empirical contributions using different experimental methodologies but also theoretical contributions review articles or opinion papers      Encyclopedia of Special Education
