An In-Depth Guide to Mobile Device Forensics Chuck Easttom, 2021-10-21 Mobile devices are ubiquitous therefore mobile device forensics is absolutely critical Whether for civil or criminal investigations being able to extract evidence from a mobile device is essential This book covers the technical details of mobile devices and transmissions as well as forensic methods for extracting evidence There are books on specific issues like Android forensics or iOS forensics but there is not currently a book that covers all the topics covered in this book Furthermore it is such a critical skill that mobile device forensics is the most common topic the Author is asked to teach to law enforcement This is a niche that is not being adequately filled with current titles An In Depth Guide to Mobile Device Forensics is aimed towards undergraduates and graduate students studying cybersecurity or digital forensics It covers both technical and legal issues and includes exercises tests quizzes case studies and slides to aid comprehension

User-Centred Design of Systems Jan Noyes, Chris Baber, 2012-12-06 System design has conventionally been the province of engineers and the approaches taken to the design of systems have conventionally led to formal specification of the system The past decade or two has seen the rise of another approach that of human computer interaction HCI Given the number of incidents and accidents which are attributed to human error it is sensible to develop an approach to system design which views humans as an essential element in the system Thus an important aspect of designing systems is the study of the interaction between humans and the technology that they use In terms of bringing computers and computing to a wide audience the 1980s were the boom years The first personal computer PC was launched onto the market in February 1978 and since then PCs have become a common place feature of our homes offices schools retail outlets hospitals banks etc Within Western society today there are very few organisations that have not been infiltrated by computer technology and few individuals who have not had experience of computers However the increase in use of computers has not been matched with a corresponding spread of training of users much of the human computer interaction research has sought to design systems which do not require special training i e which people can simply walk up to and use Not surprisingly this has resulted in a number of difficulties some of which have yet to be satisfactorily resolved
