

CUNEiFORM

Write Like a Sumerian!

Cuneiform is noted as the oldest form of writing, systems were developed in Mesopotamia as a method of communication. Cuneiform included a combination of pictographs, symbols representing entire words and phonograms (symbols representing a syllable or sound). Early Sumerian writing began as a pictographic system with simple pictures and symbols, which represented a whole word or idea. Sumerians developed pictures of objects and animals to represent the words for those objects and animals. Sumerian Cuneiform symbols include geometric shapes, lines, and dots. Later, Sumerian words such as writing and working were represented with abstract symbols. This was a revolutionary development because it allowed a more sophisticated writing system to be developed. The evolution of the phonetic system of writing provided a more modern abstract idea, which represented sounds, instead of whole ideas. The Sumerian word for water could be represented by a picture of a water drop or a symbol that represented the word.

The Sumerian word for water is represented in a picture because the two words sounded alike. This is the same strategy in the alphabet used today. The Cuneiform system of writing developed over a period of 100 years and eventually grew into a more complex system. By 3000 B.C., the Sumerians had developed a complete system of writing.

Cuneiform was used when carved into clay tablets with fluted reeds. Some tablets were used to record or they were recycled as parchment. Many of the clay tablets found in Mesopotamia were used as a record-keeping system for the Sumerians. Some tablets were used as a record-keeping system for the Sumerians. Some tablets were used as a record-keeping system for the Sumerians.
