Metro Police Application South Africa 2016:

Police Integrity in South Africa Sanja Kutnjak Ivkovich, Adri Sauerman, 2020-04-29 Policing in South Africa has gained notoriety through its extensive history of oppressive law enforcement. In 1994 as the country's apartheid system was replaced with a democratic order, the new government faced the significant challenge of transforming the South African police force into a democratic police agency, the South African Police Service (SAPS), that would provide unbiased policing to all the country's people. More than two decades since the initiation of the reforms, it appears that the SAPS has rapidly developed a reputation as a police agency beset by challenges to its integrity. This book offers a unique perspective by providing in-depth analyses of police integrity in South Africa. It is a case study that systematically and empirically explores the contours of police integrity in a young democracy. Using the organizational theory of police integrity, the book analyzes the complex set of historical, legal, political, social, and economic circumstances shaping police integrity. A discussion of the theoretical framework is accompanied by the results of a nationwide survey of nearly 900 SAPS officers probing their familiarity with official rules, their expectations of discipline within the SAPS, and their willingness to report misconduct. The book also examines the influence of the respondents' race, gender, and supervisory status on police integrity. Written in a clear and direct style, this book will appeal to students and scholars of criminology, policing, sociology, political science, as well as to police administrators interested in expanding their knowledge about police integrity and enhancing it in their organizations.

Panic City Martin J. Murray, 2020-03-10 Despite the end of white minority rule and the transition to parliamentary democracy, Johannesburg remains haunted by its tortured history of racial segregation and burdened by enduring inequalities in income, opportunities for stable work, and access to decent housing. Under these circumstances, Johannesburg has become one of the most dangerous cities in the world, where the yawning gap between the haves and have-nots has fueled a turn toward redistribution through crime. While wealthy residents have retreated into heavily fortified gated communities and upscale security estates, the less affluent have sought refuge in retrofitting their private homes into safe houses, closing off public streets, and hiring the services of private security companies to protect their suburban neighborhoods. Panic City is an exploration of urban fear and its impact on the city's evolving siege architecture, the transformation of policing, and obsession with security that has fueled unprecedented private consumption of protection services. Martin Murray analyzes the symbiotic relationship between public law enforcement agencies, private security companies, and neighborhood associations, wherein buyers and sellers of security have reinvented ways of maintaining outdated segregation practices that define the urban poor as suspects.

Policing the Global South Danielle Watson, Sara N. Amin, Wendell C. Wallace, Oluwagbenga (Michael) Akinlabi, Juan Carlos Ruiz-Vásquez, 2022-11-11 Policing the Global South provides scholarship which further transnationalises and democratises ideas about policing practices and philosophies, highlighting renovations in approaches to policing studies and injecting innovative perspectives into the study of policing from scholars positioned on the periphery.

Criminological knowledge depolarisation underscores a conscious effort by scholars from the Global South to increase intellectual knowledge focused on developing context specific responses to issues not aligned to Northern ideological positions and specific to the non Northern context Such shifts draw attention to the expanse of spaces beyond Northern centres rife with challenges unlike any specific to those experienced or conceptualised by scholars from the Global North with an applied Northern criminological lens Applying a postcolonial lens to empirical knowledge from country specific cases in former colonies in Africa Asia the Caribbean the Pacific and Latin America this book examines how policing issues not aligned to Northern ideological positions and specific to non Northern contexts are addressed The primary purpose is to share innovations in the field of policing service provision threats to security crime responses justice and international trends developed in postcolonial developing country contexts Given the aim of the book and the contributors own research on issues of policing across the globe it discusses themes including but not limited to the colonial legacies and their impact on policing how plural regulatory systems and partnerships are navigated by the police the linkages between access to justice community perceptions and police legitimacy innovations and challenges in organisational reform crime prevention and community partnerships and the expanding roles of police organisations in the Global South While each chapter presents a policing issue in a country within a specific part of the Global South the book highlights how important it is to frame responses based on contextual realities informed by an awareness of the past and present with a goal of informing the future Delivering a much needed introduction to those specialising in policing in developing countries this book is invaluable reading for academics and students of criminology criminal justice governance policy and IR as well as professionals in policing organizations across the globe

Exploring the Conditions that Impact Local Administration Responsiveness work to Migrants in selected Metropolitan Municipalities of South Africa Kibreab Habtemichael Gebereselassie, 2022-01-03

Research on local administration responsiveness towards migrant s and non citizens revealed that demographic characteristics in local municipalities have often caused challenges for local administrations to be responsive to the diverse needs of their communities Lucio et al 2013 Lucio 2016 The objective of this study was to explore the conditions that impact on the local administration s responsiveness work to migrants in Durban Cape Town Johannesburg metropolitan municipalities of South Africa The study s goal is met by identifying five major conditions that impact the local administration s responsiveness work to migrants in the study areas Conducted in two rounds field research the study used qualitative research design methods Semistructured interviews group discussions field memos and observations were used to collect data Thematic analysis method was implemented to investigate and analyze the collected raw data This dissertation also used relevant theory as framework and guide to uncover elements of local administrative responsiveness which are associated with migrants The study identified and demonstrated that five major conditions impact the local administration s responsiveness work to migrants in the study areas Local administration work environment administration organizational structure and professionalism external control from elected officials and local politics migrant s community association and economic contribution of migrants are the main conditions that impact on the responsiveness work of the local administration The findings also showed that anchored in the above five conditions administrative responsiveness also varies across the selected study areas This study also contributed by adding new insights about the mechanisms on how the local administration can address the issues of migrants who do not have a direct representation in the local government structure Accordingly for a better responsiveness work to migrants and to support the inclusion of migrants who do not have a direct political representation the study proposes recommendation for policy practice and research that targets on local administration responsiveness work to migrants

The Agonistic City? Li Pernegger, 2020-11-26 An exploration of Johannesburg s post apartheid s city administration s governance of conflict from 1996 to the current day in the case of service delivery protests and shifts in city policy The author Li Pernegger focuses in depth on the water wars in Orange Farm insurgent informal traders in the inner city and the billing battle fought by the middle class This book provides deep insights into facets of protests from the local state s qualification of the conflicts its portrayals of protestors its agonistic and antagonistic responses to protestors claims to power dynamics and the forms of agreement reached Pernegger considers what the practical prospects of agonism might be for the local government to regard city strife in its practices of governance as a constructive rather than destructive force for change and the realisation of democratic ideals for its ordinary citizens
