Introducing the IB Diploma Programme Marc Abrioux,Jill Rutherford,2013-02-14 Schools wishing to introduce the IB diploma programme are faced with major investment in terms of time effort and money in order to become authorised This manual is a resource for schools already offering the diploma as well as for prospective diploma schools Science

Teaching in Schools Great Britain: Parliament: House of Lords: Science and Technology Committee,2006-11-05 The Committee s report examines science and mathematics teaching in secondary schools in England focusing on the following issues the take up of science and mathematics at GCSE and A level the provision of careers advice to students problems in the recruitment and retention of teachers the quality of teaching methods and the role of continuing professional development The Committee finds that effective science teaching in schools is essential both in order to ensure a satisfactory general level of scientific literacy in society and to enable the next generation of scientists and engineers to progress into higher education and beyond It argues that the current examination system forces students to study an excessively narrow range of subjects at too early an age and it recommends that the Government should reconsider the Tomlinson proposals for a broader diploma based system for 14 19 year old students based on the International Baccalaureate This would ensure that students receive a more rounded education and are not made to over specialise before they are able to see the merits of studying science and mathematics Concerns are also raised about the shortage of science teachers particularly specialist physics and chemistry teachers the quality of careers advice in schools and the importance of practical science in schools

Achieving Further Daniel Slosberg,2016-01-07 Do you have students who are far ahead of their peers in math Are you a teacher who differentiates for those students by giving them additional topics but without knowing what topics they have already covered over the past years and without a plan for the topics they should cover in the next years Are you a head of department who wants to streamline differentiation throughout your math department to ensure talented students have a more uniform experience as they move from teacher to teacher and have a goal they are working towards year after year Are you a principal who wants to improve the results of your students in HL Math and to have students from your school start succeeding in HL Further Math If so this book describes a program to prepare IB Middle Years Program MYP students to enter the Diploma Program DP taking HL Further Math as their only math course The program is modeled on the ATYP program from Kalamazoo MI started by Carol McCarthy Mathematics for Life and Work A Comparative Perspective

Learning and Understanding National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Center for Education, Committee on Programs for Advanced Study of Mathematics and Science in American High Schools, 2002-09-06 This book takes a fresh look at programs for advanced studies for high school students in the United States with a particular focus on the Advanced Placement and the International

Baccalaureate programs and asks how advanced studies can be significantly improved in general. It also examines two of the core issues surrounding these programs: they can have a profound impact on other components of the education system and participation in the programs has become key to admission at selective institutions of higher education. By looking at what could enhance the quality of high school advanced study programs as well as what precedes and comes after these programs, this report provides teachers, parents, curriculum developers, administrators, college science and mathematics faculty, and the educational research community with a detailed assessment that can be used to guide change within advanced study programs.

A Better World is Possible Georgina Ferry, 2017-09-07. On 17 March 1967, the 26-year-old David Sainsbury wrote out a cheque for £5 and established the trust which would become the Gatsby Charitable Foundation. Gatsby's purpose was ambitious: to make the world a better place by taking on some of the social, economic, and scientific challenges that face humanity. In recent years, Gatsby has spent around £50m annually on charitable activities, and by its 50th anniversary in 2017, it will have spent over £1bn on programmes that range from reducing poverty in Africa to raising the standard of technical education, investigating how plants fight disease, and finding out how the brain works. But despite Gatsby's wide reach and the level of its donations, it has always functioned discreetly and out of the public eye. Georgina Ferry's in-depth account reveals its achievements and invites us to question how the super-rich and even the moderately affluent might spend their money more wisely and for the common good.

The Department for Children, Schools and Families and the Children's Plan
Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Children, Schools and Families Committee, 2008. This second report, entitled The Department for Children, Schools and Families and the Children's Plan (HCP 213, session 2007-08, ISBN 9780215514691) from the Children, Schools and Families Committee, examines the creation of the new Department for Children, Schools and Families. The Department has sole responsibility for early years education and the schooling of children between 5 and 13, but in other areas, such as education for 14-19-year-olds, it operates jointly with other Government departments, in particular the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills. The Committee welcomes the Departmental focus on children but expresses some reservations in regard of joint responsibility, which it sees as leading to a lack of clarity in regard of responsibility and a dilution in decision-making. The Committee believes clarity on which Department has specific responsibility is important, particularly with the introduction of the new Diploma system for 14-19-year-olds. Also, the Department's Children's Plan does not at present have a timetable of action or a clear set of priorities, and that the Department needs to be explicit on how it intends to drive improvements in services for children and families. In total, the Committee has set out 14 conclusions and recommendations covering the new Department, the Children's Plan, Public Service Agreements, schools funding, efficiency, and productivity.
