Harry F Wolcott

Kwakiutl Lesson Plans:

A Kwakiutl Village and School Harry F. Wolcott, 2003 This book is a reprint of a now classic text dealing with Wolcott's dissertation topic on the study of a Kwakiutl Indian village and the one room school he taught at Village Island in the Alert Bay region of British Columbia Within the book Wolcott's interest in anthropology and training as an educator are blended together to present a unique look into the educational training of Indian children Village life and the social environment from which young Indian children learn cultural conventions are skillfully contrasted with the formal structured educational system of which Wolcott as a teacher is part of within the village In showing these two opposing educational systems the author is able to highlight problems that arise and additionally the issues which come from an ethnographer being involved in a situation more than through just observation

Teaching the New Social Studies in Secondary Schools Edwin Fenton, 1966      Color in the Classroom Zoe Burkholder, 2011-10-05 Between the turn of the twentieth century and the Brown v Board of Education decision in 1954 the way that American schools taught about race changed dramatically This transformation was engineered by the nation's most prominent anthropologists including Franz Boas Ruth Benedict and Margaret Mead during World War II Inspired by scientific racism in Nazi Germany these activist scholars decided that the best way to fight racial prejudice was to teach what they saw as the truth about race in the institution that had the power to do the most good American schools Anthropologists created lesson plans lectures courses and pamphlets designed to revise what they called the race concept in American education They believed that if teachers presented race in scientific and egalitarian terms conveying human diversity as learned habits of culture rather than innate characteristics American citizens would become less racist Although nearly forgotten today this educational reform movement represents an important component of early civil rights activism that emerged alongside the domestic and global tensions of wartime Drawing on hundreds of first hand accounts written by teachers nationwide Zo Burkholder traces the influence of this anthropological activism on the way that teachers understood spoke and taught about race She explains how and why teachers readily understood certain theoretical concepts such as the division of race into three main categories while they struggled to make sense of more complex models of cultural diversity and structural inequality As they translated theories into practice teachers crafted an educational discourse on race that differed significantly from the definition of race produced by scientists at mid century Schoolteachers and their approach to race were put into the spotlight with the Brown v Board of Education case but the belief that racially integrated schools would eradicate racism in the next generation and eliminate the need for discussion of racial inequality long predated this Discussions of race in the classroom were silenced during the early Cold War until a new generation of antiracist multicultural educators emerged in the 1970s Canadian West - It's Development Gr. 7-8 Stanford, Frances, Resources in Education ,1996 Widening the Circle Beverly J.
