A Passion for success Sivalingam Moodly, 2022-01-01 this book titled A Passion For Success demonstrates forcefully how the identified individuals despite their blindness surmounted challenges in their own lives in order to achieve success and in doing so invariably improved the quality of lives of others Consisting of fourteen chapters each containing a unique story with a compelling theme the underlying message in the book appears to resonate with the view of Booker T Washington 1856 1915 a leading African American intellectual of the 19 century who observes that Success is to be measured not so much by the position one has reached in life as by the obstacles one has overcome while trying to succeed

Cities, Space and Power Amira Osman, 2020-12-31 The scholarly purpose of this manuscript is to provide a resource for academics and researchers looking into cities space and power in emerging economies It also takes into consideration the relationship between emerging economies and developing contexts as well as the lessons that may be shared between them This book presents a unique perspective and aims to highlight issues not addressed much in writing on the built environment Based on substantiation and references to numerous other sources and authors alternative theoretical frameworks for the study of the built environment are developed This is a very relevant contribution at this time especially as cities will most probably go through transformations in the post COVID 19 era Our first line of defense against this public health crisis will be in areas of poverty with people who have generally been excluded and urban practices that have been undocumented or labeled as informal The main thesis of the manuscript is that space and power are strongly linked in cities The research results prevalent in the book are original and while the authors consult widely across disciplines the themes are firmly rooted in the built environment fields with a focus on the architectural discipline

Disrupting Shameful Legacies Claudia Mitchell,Relebohile Moletsane,2018-08-14 Much has been written in Canada and South Africa about sexual violence in the context of colonial legacies particularly for Indigenous girls and young women While both countries have attempted to deal with the past through Truth and Reconciliation Commissions and Canada has embarked upon its National Inquiry on Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls there remains a great deal left to do Across the two countries history legislation and the lived experiences of young people and especially girls and young women point to a deeply rooted situation of marginalization Violence on girls and women s bodies also reflects violence on the land and especially issues of dispossession What approaches and methods would make it possible for girls and young women as knowers and actors especially those who are the most marginalized to influence social policy and social change in the context of sexual violence Taken as a whole the chapters in Disrupting Shameful Legacies Girls and Young Women Speaking Back through the Arts to Address Sexual Violence which come out of a transnational study on sexual violence suggest a new legacy one that is based on methodologies that seek to disrupt colonial legacies by privileging speaking up and speaking back through the arts and visual practice to challenge the situation of sexual violence At the same time the fact that so many of the authors of the various chapters are themselves Indigenous young people from either Canada or South Africa also suggests a new legacy of leadership for change poet and to establish his status as a pre eminent Xhosa author Jeff Opland commenced his academic career as a medievalist but for the past 40 years he has assembled a collection of oral and printed poetry and has devoted himself to defining and restoring the heritage of literature in the Xhosa language Amongst other works with Peter Mtuze he edited two anthologies of Xhosa literature Isigodlo sikaPhalo 1983 and Izwi labantu 1994 Opland is currently Visiting Professor in the School of Languages African Language Studies at Rhodes University Peter T Mtuze is the most prolific living isiXhosa writer He has authored and co authored no fewer than 30 books His main contribution is in creative writing he has produced novels short stories essays drama poetry autobiography and language books Mtuze s first book UDingezweni which appeared as far back as 1966 is regarded as a classic novel One of his singular achievements was his translation of former President Nelson Mandela s autobiography Long Walk to Freedom into isiXhosa He worked on the University of Fort Hare Xhosa Dictionary Project at the University of South Africa and at Rhodes University where he retired as Professor Emeritus Series Publications of the Opland Collection of Xhosa Literature Vol 3 Subject Poetry African Studies Navigating Ageing in South Africa Pranitha Maharaj,2025-01-30 This book systematically explores the lives and varied experiences of older people in South Africa Though a relatively youthful country the share of the population aged sixty and above in South Africa is increasing steadily and is projected to reach 10% of the population by 2025 Population ageing is having major and far reaching implications for a country with widespread poverty changing household structures a heavy burden of communicable diseases and inadequate health infrastructure Pandemics such as HIV AIDS and COVID 19 exacerbate many of the challenges faced by older people Drawing on original research from national surveys and case studies this book explores the various experiences and challenges of older people in their daily lives such as their healthcare social and family lives their socio economic status mental health and what it means to be an older person in South Africa today Exile Identity, Agency and Belonging in South Africa Zosa De Sas Kropiwnicki,2017-07-13 This book examines the experiences of 49 second generation exiles from South Africa Using generation as an analytical concept it investigates the relational temporal and embodied nature of their childhoods in terms of kinship relations life cycle cohort development and memory making It reveals how child agents exploited the liminal nature of exile to negotiate their sense of identity home and belonging while also struggling over their position and power in formal Politics and informal politics of the everyday It also reflects upon their political consciousness identity and sense of civic duty on return to post apartheid South Africa and how this has led to the emergence of the Masupatsela generational cohort concerned with driving social and political change in South Africa Reconciliation and Building a Sustainable Peace Cathy Bollaert,2019-02-02 This book explores how competing worldviews impact on intergroup relations and building a sustainable peace in culturally diverse societies It raises the question of what happens in a culturally diverse society when competing values and ways of interpreting reality collide and what this means for peace building and the goal of reconciliation Moreover it provides a valuable and needed contribution to how peace building interventions can become more sustainable if tied into local values and embedded in a society's system of meaning making. The book engages with questions relating to the extent transitional policies speak to universal values and individualist societies and the implications this might have for how they are implemented in collective societies with different values and forms of social organisation. It raises the question of cultural equality and transformation and whether or not this is something that needs to be addressed within peace building theory. It argues that inculcating worldview into peace building theory and practice is a vital part of restoring dignity and promoting healing among victims and formerly oppressed groups. This book therefore makes an important contribution to what is at best a partially researched topic by providing a deeper understanding of how identity and culture intersect with peace building when seeking to build a sustainable peace. The Geography of South Africa Jasper Knight, Christian M.
