Review Questions (Study Guide)
Module 10 - Chapter 17

After reading chapters 16 and 17, you should be able to identify the following structures, systems, parts, and functions and be able to describe them with appropriate terminology. Some of the structures have been listed. There are several organs that are found in the digestive system, as well as associated organs, that have not been listed but belong to the digestive system. All listed organs perform functions that facilitate a structural challenge's going to specific target cells, including specific cells.
