Active Reading*Section: Feeding the World

Read the passage below and answer the questions that follow.

Between 1950 and 1970, Mexico increased its production of wheat eight-fold and India doubled its production of rice. Worldwide, increases in crop yields resulted from the use of new crop varieties and the application of modern agricultural techniques. These changes were called the green revolution. Since the 1950s, the green revolution has changed the lives of millions of people.

However, the green revolution also had some negative effects. Most new varieties of grain produce large yields only if they receive large amounts of water, fertilizer, and pesticides. In addition, the machinery, irrigation, and chemicals required by new crop varieties can degrade the soil if they are not used properly. As a result of the overuse of fertilizers and pesticides, yields from green revolution crops are falling in many areas. Grain production in the United States has decreased since 1990, partly because the amount of water used for irrigation has decreased during the same period.
