Time Burning is an account of the political religious and moral censorship of literature in the context of English literary history. It is principally concerned with the evolution of a modern pattern of censorship between the abolition of licensing in 1695 and the late Victorian period. The author outlines the motives and methods of censorship illustrating these by more detailed discussion of such cases as those involving Edmund Curll, John Wilkes, Thomas Paine, William Hone, Richard Carlile, William Dugdale and Henry Vizetelly. The unofficial trade in banned books and the campaigns of the Proclamation Society, the Society for the Suppression of Vice and the National Vigilance Association are described with the aid of some previously unpublished material. The book includes an anthology of illustrative material quoting extracts from publications banned at various times and for various reasons. Pages from such books as Venus in the Cloister are reprinted for the first time in more than two centuries while the other documents range from the Blasphemy Act of 1698 to a prosecution brought under the Race Relations Act of 1965.

California, Here I Am Christopher Wood, 2004-12. California here I am is a funny and shrewd Hollywood novel that takes us into the movie making scene, its hype, its glamour and its ruthlessness. At the same time it chronicles a son's relationship with his father as they wreak their own route through Beverly Hills, Santa Barbara, Sun Valley and eventually end up at a strange Caribbean island. It is a humorous but also moving story. The author himself a Hollywood insider gives some powerful insights into the ways and wiles of the industry and its protagonists.

Feeling Pleasures Joe Moshenska, 2014. Feeling Pleasures argues that the sense of touch assumed a new and unique importance in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries and that the work of major poets of the period including Edmund Spenser, William Shakespeare and John Milton should be read alongside these developing ideas.
