Medicine, Charity and Mutual Aid Peter Shapely, 2016-04-29 The history of the voluntary sector in British towns and cities has received increasing scholarly attention in recent years Nevertheless whilst there have been a number of valuable contributions looking at issues such as charity as a key welfare provider charity and medicine and charity and power in the community there has been no book length exploration of the role and position of the recipient By focusing on the recipients of charity rather than the donors or institutions this volume tackles searching questions of social control and cohesion and the relationship between providers and recipients in a new and revealing manner It is shown how these issues changed over the course of the nineteenth century as the frontier between the state and the voluntary sector shifted away from charity towards greater reliance on public finance workers contributions and mutual aid In turn these new sources of assistance enriched civil society encouraging democratization empowerment and social inclusion for previously marginalized members of the community The book opens with an introduction that locates medicine charity and mutual aid within their broad historiographical and urban contexts Twelve archive based inter related chapters follow Their main chronological focus is the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries which witnessed such momentous changes in the attitudes to and allocation of charity and poor relief However individual chapters on the early modern period the eighteenth century and the aftermath of the Second World War provide illuminating context and help ensure that the volume provides a systematic overview of the subject that will be of interest to social urban and medical historians

Retail and Community George Campbell Gosling, Alix R. Green, Grace Millar, 2024-06-28 Retail has never existed in a vacuum This interdisciplinary volume explores how English commercial co-operative and charity retailing were shaped by and in turn influenced their social and political environments from the local to the global between the late nineteenth and early twenty first centuries Historians sociologists archivists and heritage professionals engage with current debates on the rise of modern business and the decline of the high street class and credit professionalisation in the voluntary sector migration and the end of empire This book will be a key resource to better understand retail and community in an era defined by social change shedding new light on the enduring centrality of community relationships to modern retailers

Digital Genealogy as Second-Wave Digital Humanities Iain E. Riddell, 2025-06-13 In the first major engagement with Aberdeenshire's rural society since Carter's The Poor Man's Country of 1979 Riddell's study of Northeast Scotland encourages readers to consider the vast potential held by Digital Genealogy for second wave Digital Humanities Often overlooked in contemporary historical scholarship this study carves out a place for Digital Genealogy in academia Riddell constructs a new lens to examine rural society in the nineteenth century through which he extends and challenges Carter s analysis In recovering a breadth of people and their social networks through prosopographical data the book reveals the agency of individuals who left minimal records Riddell not only puts forward a fresh perspective on the social structures of Scotland s north eastern society but also informs a discussion on the nature of Britishness both within concepts of a developed western civilisation and beyond them This book will interest a broad readership Scottish history enthusiasts pursuers of Digital Genealogy and scholars and students of the Digital Humanities will all find value in this study Women in Welsh Coal Mining Norena Shopland,2023-08-17 We tend to think of coal mining as predominantly a male occupation with women confined to roles as wives and support workers Women worked at the coal face for many years before they were banned in 1842 However mere legislation was not going to stop them many continued to work underground with mine owners making little attempt to stop them due to the low wages paid to women Some would dress and pass as men to fool visiting inspectors For the majority though they worked on the pit brow where they received the coal cleaned sorted and cut it to uniform size Dirty laborious work including many accidents and deaths done by women and girls some as young as 10 years old Society was appalled and harshly criticized women but not men for working in such environments and so close to male workers Find a respectable job like domestic service they were told despite the fact that few jobs for women were available in such industrialized areas Like the more famous Pit Brow Lasses of Lancashire the Tip Girls were castigated for having unsexed themselves accused of immorality of being unfit wives and mothers and society went on a mission to save them But the Tip Girls did not want to be saved For nearly a hundred years these women fought society and Parliament to keep their jobs and clear their reputations Norena Shopland tells their story for the first time New research from census returns and newspaper accounts have uncovered over 1 500 named women who worked in the Welsh coalfields only a few could be included in this book but it shows how much more work is needed in order for us to continue to celebrate these remarkable women Easy Family History David Annal,2013-06-30 Easy Family History takes the stress out of family history research It guides readers through the most important information sources for family historians in the UK including family documents official records archives and websites From what to expect on a birth cert to how to use newspaper archives each chapter focuses on an area of research and takes you through the basics This book focuses on UK records and archives Fully updated this new edition includes information on recently released archives such as the 1911 Census and recently digitised military records and archives that are now online This book features screenshots of useful websites and images of sample archival documents throughout Author David Annal draws on his expertise and experience as a professional family history researcher to help budding family historians to get started and keep their findings in order and in perspective Sharing Your Family History Online Chris Paton,2021-03-15 An expert genealogist explains how to share your family history online and collaborate with distant relatives to build a richer ancestral story For many enthusiasts pursuing their family history research the online world offers a seemingly endless archive of digitized materials In addition to hosting records however the internet also offers a unique platform on which we can host our research and potentially connect with distant relatives from around the world In Sharing Your Family History Online genealogist Chris Paton demonstrates the many ways we can present our research and encourage collaboration online He details helpful organizations and social media applications describes the software platforms on which we can collate our stories and illustrates the variety of ways we can publish our stories online Along the way Paton also explores how we can make our research work for us by connecting with experts and relatives who can help solve ancestral mysteries This happens not only by sharing stories but by accessing uniquely held documentation by family members around the world including our shared DNA

Regions, Industries, and Heritage. Juliane Czierpka, Kathrin Oerters, Nora Thorade, 2016-03-21 The industrial age has proved to be a formative period for Europe Industrial heritage nowadays bears witness to the development that took place in differently structured regions This volume presents different paths of industrial development and gives an overview of the concepts of regions used among economic social and cultural historians

Researching Local History Stuart A. Raymond, 2022-09-08 How has the place we live in changed developed and grown over the centuries That is the basic question local historians seek to answer The answer is to be found in the sources of information that previous generations have left us The records of parish county and diocesan administration of the courts of the national government and of private estates all have something to tell us about the history of the locality we are interested in So do old newspapers and other publications All of these sources are readily available but many have been little used Local historians come from a wide diversity of backgrounds But whether you are a student researching a dissertation a family historian interested in the wider background history of your family a teacher a librarian an archivist an academic or are merely interested in the history of your own area this book is for you If you want to research local history you need a detailed account of the myriad sources readily available This book provides a comprehensive overview of those sources and its guidance will enable you to explore and exploit their vast range It poses the questions which local historians ask and identifies the specific sources likely to answer those questions

Naval Seamen's Women in Nineteenth-Century Britain Melanie Holihead, 2024-11-19 Explores the lived experiences of the women of lower deck seamen in the nineteenth century British navy This book explores the lived experiences of the women the mothers sisters foster mothers of motherless children but above all the wives of lower deck seamen in the nineteenth century British navy It makes extensive use of the allotment scheme a system which enabled men to convey portions of their pay to dependants at home The scheme had been devised by a Royal Navy worried by the adverse effect on naval manpower caused by experienced and mature sailors quitting the service in order to support loved ones suffering poverty on shore Drawing also on civil parish and local data the book reveals hitherto unknown differences between naval and civilian patterns of nuptiality family life occupation and household structure It illustrates the impact of naval breadwinners long term absence in analyses of local migration mutual support networks and clusterings of same ship families and to bring the picture to life it includes microhistories and stories of individual women The book concludes that while the sailor s woman s allotted place in the popular imagination shifted with changing perceptions of sailors reputation and standing a constant otherness attached to women who chose marriage to long absent men and a life of necessary self reliance

Nursing and Women's Labour in the Nineteenth Century Sue Hawkins, 2010-04-05 This book presents a new examination of Victorian nurses which challenges commonly held assumptions about their character and motivation Nineteenth century nursing history has until now concentrated almost exclusively on nurse leaders on the development of nursing as a profession and the politics surrounding registration This emphasis on big themes and reliance on the writings of nursing s upper stratum has resulted in nursing history being littered with stereotypes This book is one of the first attempts to understand in detail the true nature of Victorian nursing at ground level Uniquely the study views nursing through an economic lens as opposed to the more usual vocational focus Nursing is placed in the wider context of women s role in British society and the changing prospects for female employment in the high Victorian period Using St George s Hospital London as a case study the book explores the evolution of nurse recruitment training conditions of employment and career development in the second half of the nineteenth century Pioneering prosopographical techniques which combined archival material with census data to create a database of named nurses have enabled the generation for the first time of biographies of ordinary nurses Sue Hawkins findings belie the picture of nursing as a profession dominated by middle class women Nursing was a melting pot of social classes with promotion and opportunity extended to all women on the basis of merit alone This pioneering work will interest students and researchers in nursing history the social and cultural history of Victorian England and women s studies
