Snyders, M.D.,2021-07-28 Cook A Doctor s True Story By Robert V Snyders M D RETIRED CAHOKIA DOCTOR INVENTS MEDICAL DEVICES By Jason White Managing Editor The Cohokia Herald August 15 2001 Excerpted The heart is where Dr Robert V Snyders is most at home these days Snyders a physician in Cahokia for three decades until his retirement six years ago is working on a new generation of implanted cardiac assist devices His interest in the field began in 1988 when his mother in law died of late stage congestive heart failure a few months after being treated for the condition She was in her late 70s and otherwise healthy She should have lived a longer life he said And that got me started There ought to be something simple we can do that can give them a few more years Late stage heart failure affects about 500 000 Americans Another 50 000 to 100 000 suffer from acute heart failure which may occur after surgery or heart attacks More than a decade later Snyder s has developed three of what he calls implanted cardiac assist devices His initial forays into the field began with the fabrication of a pneumatic heart jacket The jacket wraps around the heart and pumps through an

electrocardiogram timed gas driven system Later he modified the jacket design into a fluid driven device that reduces a heart s volume which helps restore heart functionality to victims of late stage heart failure an electrocardiogram timed gas driven system Later he modified the jacket design into a fluid driven device that reduces a heart s volume which helps restore heart functionality to victims of late stage heart failure Snyders worked at the St Louis University Medical School s Surgical Research Institute where he tested prototypes of the jacket on pigs Another early step involved building heart models based on animal and human cadavers I had to start from scratch he said The devices reduce the bleeding and infection risks posed by the current generation of cardiac assist devices Snyders said People who use these devices often require a heart transplant an operation that is performed only 2 500 times per year You try to get a heart transplant and that s a tough act to follow through to completion Snyders said In the last two years Snyders has built a device called a Funnel Valve to prevent blood from flowing the wrong way through the heart s four valves The valve would be delivered to the heart through blood vessels Its advantage is that a patient s heart would not have to be stopped Snyders paid for much of his early research out of his own pocket But in 1998 he licensed three of his patents to Cardio Technologies Inc of Pine Brook N J The company combined his inventions with those of Dr Mark Anstadt of Duke University to develop a pneumatic heart jacket that is now being tested at East Coast medical facilities A year later Snyders licensed the patent for Pine Brook N J The company combined his inventions with those of Dr Mark Anstadt of Duke University to develop a pneumatic heart jacket that is now being tested at East Coast medical facilities A year later Snyders licensed the patent for the fluid driven modification of the heart jacket Testing is one reason his research takes so much money For example he travels to Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center in New York to test his valve on a flow loop a machine that simulates the flow of blood through the heart because St Louis doesn t have a flow loop He said it will be three to five years before the Food and Drug Administration grants an investigational device exemption so that his inventions can be used on people When you start these things you never know what particular modifications might work best he said That s why it takes a number of years You don t hit it right away Continued inside on page 72 were born in the Stone Age Sex and gender taboos were used by tribes to differentiate themselves from one another These taboos filtered into the lives of Bronze and Iron Age men and women who lived in city states and empires For the early Christians all sex play was turned into sin instilled with guilt and punished severely With the invention of sin came the construction of women as subordinate beings to men Despite the birth of romance in the late middle ages Renaissance churches held inquisitions to seek out and destroy sex sinners all of whom it saw as heretics The Age of Reason saw the demise of these inquisitions But it was doctors who would take over the roles of priests and ministers as sex became defined by discourses of crime degeneracy and sickness The middle of the 20th century saw these medical and religious teachings challenged for the first time as activists such as Alfred Kinsey and Margaret Sanger sought to carve out a place for sexual freedom in society However strong opposition to their beliefs and the growing exploitation of sex by the media at the close of the century would ultimately shape 21st century sexual ambivalence Book One of this two part publication traces the history of sex from the Stone Age to the Enlightenment Interspersed with personal hauntings from his own life and the lives of friends and relatives Knowles reveals how historical discourses of sex continue to haunt us today This book is a page turner in simple and plain language about how sex got screwed up for millennia For Knowles if we know the history of sex we can get over it
