

Chapter 4

Accumulating and Assigning Costs to Products

QUESTIONS

- 4-1 The cost of the raw materials entered into production is moved from the raw materials account to the work-in-process inventory account. The cost of manufacturing labor and overhead costs are assigned to production by adding them to the work-in-process inventory account. Overhead costs are assigned (or allocated or apportioned) as determined by the cost system. When manufacturing is completed, work is transferred to finished goods inventory, and costs are moved from the work-in-process inventory account to the finished goods inventory account. Finally, when goods are sold their costs are moved from the finished goods inventory account to cost of goods sold.
- 4-2 Manufacturing organizations face greater challenges in product costing, especially the assignment of overhead costs, than most of service organizations do. The basic idea behind all manufacturing costing systems is to determine the costs that products accumulate as they traverse organizational resources during manufacturing, as described above in 4-1. In small organizations, goods are purchased rather than manufactured; the cost of the goods purchased is entered into an account that accumulates the cost of manufacturing inventory in the store. There, minor various overhead costs such as labor, depreciation on the store, lighting, and heating. The primary focus in small operations is the profitability of product lines or departments. Therefore, small organizations, like manufacturing organizations, face the issue of how to allocate various overhead costs to determine, for example, the cost of purchasing and selling products, or department costs.

Service organizations that undertake major projects, such as in a consultancy, focus on determining the cost of a project. In such situations, the major direct cost, employee pay, is often a large proportion of the project's cost. The organization will also assign various overhead costs to measure project profitability.
