QUESTIONS

The cost of manufacturing labor and overhead costs are assigned to production by adding them to the work-in-process inventory account. Overhead costs are assigned (or allocated or apportioned, as described by the cost system, before manufacturing is completed, work is transferred to finished goods inventory, and costs are moved from the work-in-process inventory account to the finished goods inventory account. The latter often looked all manufacturing costing systems in to determine the cost that products accumulate as they progress regardless whether manufacturing, as described above in 4-1. In small organizations, goods are purchased rather than manufactured; the cost of the goods purchased is added over an account that accumulates the cost of manufacturing overhead in the costs. Items that various overhead costs such as labor, depreciation on the costs, lighting, and heating. The primary focus is on the assignment to the production of products based on depreciation. Therefore, small organizations like manufacturing organizations, face the issue of how to allocate various overhead costs to determine, for example, the cost of purchasing and selling products, or depreciation costs.

Service organizations that undertake major projects, such as in a construction, focus on determining the cost of a project. In such situations, the major direct cost, significant part, is often a large proportion of the project's cost.
