Charity Law Juliet Chevalier-Watts, 2017-09-14 This work provides an analytical and comparative analysis of the development of charity law as well as providing a critical commentary on a number of contemporary changes within the charity law field across a range of common law jurisdictions The book follows earlier studies which cover a similar and traditional jurisdictional spread but which are now dated It further considers in detail charity law issues within Hong Kong and Singapore about which there has been historically more limited charity law discussion The area is growing in terms of practical legal and academic interest

Immigration, Citizenship and Insecurity Heli Askola, 2025-06-06 Immigration Citizenship and Insecurity An Australian Story explores how Australia's policies on migration and nationality have shaped citizenship and social inclusion The book examines the historical and contemporary intersections of citizenship migration and insecurity analysing key issues such as the prioritisation of economic utility in migration policy cultural expectations placed on newcomers and the role of migrants in political debate It critically assesses Australia's responses to challenges such as demographic ageing cultural diversity and erosion of political authority The impact of emergency measures during the COVID 19 pandemic is also explored revealing the fragility of citizenship protections in times of crisis This book is an essential resource for scholars policy makers and professionals in migration studies political science and public policy as well as anyone interested in the evolving dynamics of citizenship and migration in Australia and beyond

Estimating the Demand for Reserve Assets Across Diverse Groups Ms. Rina Bhattacharya, Katja Mann, Ms. Mwanza Nkusu, 2018-03-09 This paper takes a fresh look at the determinants of reserves holding with the aim of highlighting similarities and differences in the motives for holding reserves among emerging markets EMs advanced economies AEs and low income countries LICs We apply two panel estimation techniques fixed effects FE and common correlated effects pooled mean group CCEPMG FE regression results suggest that precautionary savings motives both current account and capital account related are generally the most important determinants of reserves holding across country groups and that their importance has increased for AEs and LICs since the global financial crisis while receding for EMs Mercantilist motives matter mostly for EMs Intertemporal motives have been gaining importance everywhere over time The CCEPMG results confirm the importance of precautionary motives and suggest that current account motives matter only for EMs and LICs and capital account motives matter for all groups while being more important for EMs in both the short and long runs The CCEPMG results also point to the importance of taking into account unobserved common factors that affect coefficient estimates and the dynamic process through which reserves adjust to changes At about 0.6 the speed of adjustment to the long run equilibrium implies that more than half of the gap between actual and desired reserve holdings is closed within a year

Animal-friendly methods for rodent behavioral testing in neuroscience research Raffaele d'Isa, Stefania Fasano, Riccardo Brambilla, 2024-07-03 Rodent behavioral testing has been used to study brain functions since the 1890s and has become a gold standard model in modern neuroscience Up to the 1950s most behavioral tests on laboratory rodent models were based on punishments and rewards Both approaches can lead to a certain degree of animal pain or suffering Punishments involved the employment of painful stimuli typically electric shocks Passive avoidance and fear conditioning tests among the most widely used behavioral paradigms used to evaluate learning and memory in rodents can be performed using only a single brief shock Other tests such as the active avoidance might require up to tens or hundreds of shocks strongly challenging the psychological welfare of the model animals On the other hand tests based on rewards which apparently may seem more ethical actually still induce suffering in the animals as food rewards are almost always associated with a food restriction protocol in order to motivate food seeking behavior Rodents are starved for days before starting the test and kept under food restriction for the whole duration of the test The distress during the testing session is only a minimal part compared to the stress lived outside of the testing session which is prolonged and continuous Analogously liquid rewards commonly rely on a previous water restriction protocol to use thirst as motivation Animal stress is not only an ethical issue per se but also an important factor potentially impacting on the reliability and reproducibility of experimental results
