DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

America Before the Declaration of Independence

In his message to Parliament in 1775, King George III spoke against the rebellious colonies and ordered an increase of the royal army and navy. News of his speech reached the American colonies in 1776, strengthening the radicals' cause and leading many to leave their posts of taxation. Colonists were mostly upset with high taxes to pay off the debt from the French and Indian War. The recent British immigrant Thomas Paine published "Common Sense," in which he argued that independence was a "natural right" and the only possible way for the colonies; the pamphlet sold more than 150,000 copies in its first few weeks in publication.

1. What did King George III order?

2. How did news of King George III's speech impact the colonies?

3. Why were colonists upset?

4. How was "Common Sense" for independence?

5. How many copies were sold?

Continental Congress

With the American Revolution happening, the movement for independence from Britain had grown, and delegates of the Continental Congress were faced with a vote on the issue. In June 1776, a five-man committee including Thomas Jefferson, John Adams and Benjamin Franklin was tasked with drafting a formal statement of the colonies' intentions. The Congress formally adopted the Declaration of Independence in Philadelphia on July 4, a date now celebrated as the birth of American independence.

6. What was involved in drafting a formal statement?

7. When do we celebrate American independence from Great Britain?

Thomas Jefferson

As Jefferson drafted it, the Declaration of Independence was divided into sections. The introduction stated that seeking independence from Britain had become "necessary" for the colonies. While the body of the document outlined a list of grievances (complaints) against the British Crown, the preamble includes its most famous passage: "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness; that to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving (getting) their just powers from the consent (permission) of the governed."

8. How was body of the Declaration of Independence against the British Crown?

9. What rights are listed in the Declaration of Independence? Life, _____, and the pursuit of _____

Lasting Impact

The Declaration of Independence became a significant landmark in the history of democracy. In addition to its importance in the line of the fledgling American nation, it also put forth a huge influence outside the United States, most noticeably in France during the French Revolution. Together with the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, the Declaration of Independence can be viewed as one of the three essential founding documents of the United States government.

10. How did the Declaration of Independence influence outside nations?
