

A survey of the research on NLE conducted in Chapter 6 continues the threads of discussion engaged in earlier chapters. The discussion correlating NLE with African-American dialects is continued here, with references to research by Clarke (2006) and others. The survey of research also serves to demonstrate the centrality of author Sandra Clarke as a scholar of NLE. Concluding with a survey of literature might seem counter-intuitive to some readers but this is a stylistic feature of all books in the Dialects of English series. Concluding with the survey serves to highlight how this particular volume contributes to the literature and where gaps exist, notably in the study of prosodic features of NLE and the segmental and suprasegmental features of contact varieties of Aboriginal English spoken by populations of Labrador. The final chapter of the book provides longer versions of the sample texts that are referenced in brief throughout the text. This allows readers to peruse the texts at length along with the corresponding audio files archived on the publisher's website (www.jel.ed.ac.uk/dialects/). The author also offers a description of the context in which the text was produced.

In summary, Sandra Clarke is recognized as a leading scholar in the study of NLE whose book offers a culturally situated examination of features of divergent forms of NLE phonology, morphology, and lexicology. The book is valuable for the specificity with which it tracks the multiple sound and structure differences encompassed within NLE and for its wide variety of archival and media resources that allow readers to experience the richness of NLE both over time and across a variety of socio-cultural contexts. The systematic thorough approach of the book makes it highly relevant to linguistics scholars and accessible for scholars in cognate fields. This book is a worthwhile volume for those who are interested in the study of NLE.

The Segmentation and Representation of Translocative Motion Events in English and Chinese Discourse Guofeng Zheng, 2020-12-01 This book provides a systematic contrastive analysis of the segmentation and representation of English and Chinese Translocative Motion Events TMEs which possess Macro Event Property MEP It addresses all the issues critical to understanding TMEs in English and Chinese from event segmentation MEP principles and the conceptual structure of TMEs and their constituents to the representation of Actant Motion Path and Ground The book argues that the corpus based alignment for the TME segmentation in both languages the parameters of Actant Motion Path and Ground and their relevant statistical description are particularly important for understanding English and Chinese TMEs The linguistic materialization of Actant Ground Path and Motion together with a wealth of tables and figures offers convincing evidence to support the typological classification of English and Chinese The book's suggestions regarding the Talmyan bipartite typology and Bohnemeyer's MEP contribute to the advancement of TME studies and language typology and help learners to understand motion events and English Chinese typological similarities and differences

Motion Encoding in Language and Space Mila Dimitrova-Vulchanova, Emile van der Zee, 2013 This book brings together researchers in linguistics computer science psychology and cognitive science to investigate how motion is encoded in language Part I considers the parameters of the field while part II looks at the way in which spatial scale or granularity plays a role in the encoding of motion in language

Pragmatics of Space Andreas H. Jucker, Heiko Hausendorf, 2022-09-20 This handbook provides a comprehensive overview of spatial configurations of language use and of language use in space It consists of four parts The first part covers the various practices of describing space through language including spatial references in spoken interaction or in written texts the description of motion events as well as the creation of imaginative spaces in storytelling The second part surveys aspects of the spatial organization of face to face communication including not only spatial arrangements of small groups in interaction but also the spatial dimension of sign language and gestures The third part is devoted to the communicative resources of constructed spaces and the ways in which these facilitate and shape communication Part four finally is devoted to pragmatics across space and cultures i.e. the ways in which language use differs across language varieties languages and cultures

Encoding Motion Events Till Woerfel, 2018-09-10 Children who grow up as second or third generation immigrants typically acquire and speak the minority language at home and the majority language at school Recurrently these children have been the subject of controversial debates about their linguistic abilities in relation to their educational success However such debates fail to recognise that variation in bilinguals language processing is a phenomenon in its own right that results from the dynamic influence of one language on another This volume provides insight into cross linguistic influence in Turkish German and Turkish French bilingual children and uncovers the nature of variation in L1 and L2 oral motion event descriptions by evaluating the impact of language specific patterns and language dominance The results indicate that next to typological differences between the speakers L1 and L2 language dominance has an impact on the type and direction of influence However the author argues that most variation can be explained by L1 L2 usage preferences Bilinguals make frequent use of patterns that exist in both languages but are unequally preferred by monolingual speakers This finding underlines the importance of usage based approaches in SLA
