Abstract.
 The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness of 10-year-old children. The program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The children were divided into two groups: a control group and an experimental group. The experimental group showed significant improvements in cardiovascular fitness, muscular strength, and flexibility compared to the control group. The results suggest that a structured physical education program can effectively improve the physical fitness of young children.
