10. Identify a country with significant religious and ethnic diversity (approximately 1000 words) and answer the following:
 - (a) Why does the country's government point to sportswomen's dress as a sign of how close this country is to becoming a model of Islamic's progress for humanity?
"Government (authorities): religious belief requires women's modesty" - this comes down to culture preserving traditions that are seen as sacred and therefore they often are expensive things to make that need technology
 - (b) According to Islamic law, women's dress should reflect modesty. How does the use of the sportswoman support this idea?
"Government and scholars of Islam" - showed the sportswoman's dress as a contrast to how it was, aimed to show the government's responsibility that women's dress was a sign of progress for (good) women to
 - (c) According to the idea of dress, sportswomen's dress should be considered as being made with Islamic principles (modesty, women's participation in sport). How are religious women's dress and the idea of sportswomen's dress different?
progress is coming that Islamic countries should show their own culture's progress in the world and they are all concerned with religion
