

Nervous System Special Senses

Special Senses Stations

Introduction: You are currently surrounded with sensory information changing the environment and your sensory system. "Senses" are types of sensory stimuli that provide sensory information to the brain. Most of our senses are located in the head, but some are located in other parts of the body. The five senses are sight, hearing, touch, taste, and smell. Each sense has a specific organ that receives the information and sends it to the brain. The brain then processes the information and sends it to the rest of the body. The five senses are: sight, hearing, touch, taste, and smell. Each sense has a specific organ that receives the information and sends it to the brain. The brain then processes the information and sends it to the rest of the body.
