Heather Mendick explores this phenomenon addressing the important question of why more boys than girls choose to study mathematics. She combines new research with an original theoretical approach to argue that doing mathematics is doing masculinity. The book illuminates what studying mathematics means for both students and teachers and offers a broad range of insights into students' views and practices. In addition to the words of young people learning mathematics, the masculinity of mathematics is explored through historical material and cinematic representations. Heather Mendick discusses the ways in which the alignment of mathematics with masculinity creates tensions for girls and women doing the subject. These tensions are sensitively explored through interviews with young men and women to show how doing mathematics fits or conflicts with their gender identities. Finally, the book explores the implications for teachers, including ways to promote gender equity in mathematics education. This is key reading for students on courses in gender and education, mathematics education, gender and curriculum, and social justice. Cincinnati Magazine, 2003-04. Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Education Committee, 2013-06-11. The 2012 GCSE English results prompted significant controversy which ultimately resulted in an application for judicial review. This report sets out the background to these events and identifies lessons to be learned. The problems with GCSE English can be traced back to the 2007/09 development phase of the qualification, in particular the turbulence which resulted from the shift away from a mostly linear to a modular system combined with a high proportion of controlled assessment and generous marking tolerances. Exam board experts raised concerns at the time but these were not acted upon by the regulator, the then interim Ofqual. Further difficulties arose because of pressures from the school accountability system. The problems experienced with GCSE English in 2012 highlighted serious weaknesses in the moderation of speaking and listening, with consequences for grade awarding. The current status of Ofqual as an independent regulator accountable to Parliament is the right one. However, the Coalition Government is bringing in wholesale changes to GCSEs and A levels to a tight timetable, and at the same time Ofqual must have systems in place. The Committee is also concerned that there is a rush towards separate exam systems for England, Wales, and Northern Ireland without careful reflection on what might be lost or consensus that this is the right thing to do.
