Department of Housing and Urban Development,1972 Road to Nowhere Emily Lieb,2025-11-06 Traces the birth plunder and scavenging of Rosemont a Black middle class neighborhood in Baltimore In the mid 1950s Baltimore s Rosemont neighborhood was alive and vibrant with smart rowhouses a sprawling park corner grocery stores and doctor s offices By 1957 a proposed expressway threatened to gut this Black middle class community from stem to stern That highway was never built but it didn t matter even the failure to build it destroyed Rosemont economically if not physically In telling the history of the neighborhood and the notional East West Expressway Emily Lieb shows the interwoven tragedies caused by racism in education housing and transportation policy Black families had been attracted to the neighborhood after Baltimore s Board of School Commissioners converted several white schools into colored ones which had also laid the groundwork for predatory real estate agents who bought low from white sellers and sold high to determined Black buyers Despite financial discrimination Black homeowners built a thriving community before the city council formally voted to condemn some nine hundred homes in Rosemont for the expressway leading to deflated home values and even more predatory real estate deals Drawing on land records oral history media coverage and policy documents Lieb demystifies blockbusting redlining and prejudicial lending highlighting the national patterns at work in a single neighborhood The result is an absorbing story about the deliberate decisions that produced racial inequalities in housing jobs health and wealth as well as a testament to the ingenuity of the residents who fought to stay in their homes down to today
