Engaging Youth in Leadership for Social and Political Change Michael P. Evans,Kathleen Knight Abowitz,2015-12-21 Youth leadership initiatives can help young people engage in democratic life participatory governance and social and political change Leadership education oriented towards political and social change must continue to evolve in response to the lived experience of youth This volume explores those new meanings through examining the theories and practices constituting the emerging ground of public leadership including research spanning secondary and higher education programs local and international contexts school based and out of school time initiatives and a broad diversity of youth The Jossey Bass quarterly report series New Directions for Student Leadership explores leadership concepts and pedagogical topics of interest to high school and college leadership educators Issues are grounded in scholarship and feature practical applications and best practices in youth and adult leadership education Towards more effective collaboration by higher education institutions for greater regional development in the Gauteng City-Region Robert Bergman,2014-11-19 Higher education institutions HEIs in the Gauteng City Region GCR and elsewhere are increasingly being called upon to do more than their traditional roles of teaching and research They are now expected to collaborate and engage with other stakeholders with a view to contributing directly and indirectly to social and economic development in their localities. Such an orientation includes having HEIs actively fostering public private partnerships and other initiatives that enhance equitable regional development. The adoption of such a focus has implications for all aspects of these institutions' activities as well as for the policy and regulatory framework in which they operate. This Occasional Paper reflects critically on the role of HEIs in regional development. It surveys current debates on the matter and draws out some of the implications on how we ought to think further about the current state of government industry/academia interaction and collaboration for development in the GCR. It is motivated by an awareness of the increasing importance of higher education in the regional development discourse alongside a body of international theory and practice on the contribution of HEIs to regional development. A cornerstone of this body of literature is the so called triple helix framework within which government industry and academia work intimately intensely and collaboratively towards a common vision of regional development. Within this framework HEIs are considered to be a public good that must play a large meaningful and relevant role in the development and improvement of the cities and regions where they are located.^{1 2} They do not and cannot stand completely outside the realities of their geographic social cultural and political environment. The intended audience for this report extends beyond academics and HEI administrators to include government officials business and labour leaders civil society and citizens because a discussion on stimulating and improving the GCR must be much more than an academic exercise. The collaboration that is essential to regional development requires stakeholders to be familiar with a wide spectrum of issues of importance to individual constituencies. Each constituency must add value and insight to the discussion by drawing on their specific knowledge experience and self interests. Establishing this common ground is fundamental to initiating meaningful debate about what the GCR can and should be and how regional HEIs can work more collaboratively creatively and effectively to improve and advance the region.

Power and Informality in Urban Africa Laura Stark,Annika Björnsdotter Teppo,2021-12-16 Urban Africa is undergoing a transformation unlike anywhere else in the world as unprecedented numbers of people migrate to rapidly expanding cities But despite the growing body of work on urban Africa the lives of these new city dwellers have received relatively little attention particularly when it comes to crucial issues of power and inequality This interdisciplinary collection brings together contributions from urban studies geography and anthropology to provide new insights into the social and political dynamics of African cities as well as uncovering the causes and consequences of urban inequality Featuring rich new ethnographic research data and case studies drawn from across the continent the collection shows that Africa s new urbanites have adapted to their environs in ways which often defy the assumptions of urban planners By examining the experiences of these urban residents in confronting issues of power and agency the contributors consider how such insights can inform more effective approaches to research city planning and development both in Africa and beyond

Routledge Handbook of Urban Planning in Africa Carlos Nunes Silva,2019-10-28 This handbook contributes with new evidence and new insights to the on going debate on the de colonization of knowledge on urban planning in Africa African cities grew rapidly since the mid 20th century in part due to rising rural migration and rapid internal demographic growth that followed the independence in most African countries This rapid urbanization is commonly seen as a primary cause of the current urban management challenges with which African cities are confronted This importance given to rapid urbanization prevented the due consideration of other dimensions of the current urban problems challenges and changes in African cities The contributions to this handbook explore these other dimensions looking in particular to the nature and capacity of local self government and to the role of urban governance and urban planning in the poor urban conditions found in most African cities It deals with current and contemporary urban challenges and urban policy responses but also offers an historical overview of local governance and urban policies during the colonial period in the late 19th and 20th centuries offering ample evidence of common features and divergent features as well on a number of facets from intra urban racial segregation solutions to the relationships between the colonial power and the natives to the assimilation policy as practiced by the French and Portuguese and the Indirect Rule put in place by Britain in some or in part of its colonies Using innovative approaches to the challenges confronting the governance of African cities this handbook is an essential read for students and scholars of Urban Africa urban planning in Africa and African Development Economics of South African Townships Sandeep Mahajan, 2014-08-25 Countries everywhere are divided within into two distinct spatial realms one urban one rural Classic models of development predict faster growth in the urban sector causing rapid migration from rural areas to cities lifting average incomes in both places The situation in South Africa throws up an unconventional challenge The country has symptoms of a spatial realm that is not not rural not fully urban lying somewhat in limbo This is the realm of the country's townships and informal settlements T IS In many ways the townships and especially the informal settlements are similar to developing world slums although never was a slum formed with as much central planning and purpose as were some of the larger South African townships And yet there is something distinct about the T IS For one thing unlike most urban slums most T IS are geographically distant from urban economic centers Exacerbated by the near absence of an affordable public transport system this makes job seeking and other forms of economic integration prohibitively expensive Motivated by their uniqueness and their special place in South African economic and social life this study seeks to develop a systematic understanding of the structure of the township economy What emerges is a rich information base on the migration patterns to T IS changes in their demographic profiles their labor market characteristics and their access to public and financial services The study then look closely at Diepsloot a large township in the Johannesburg Metropolitan Area to bring out more vividly the economic realities and choices of township residents Given the current dichotomous urban structure modernizing the township economy and enabling its convergence with the much richer urban centers has the potential to unleash significant productivity gains Breaking out of the current low level equilibrium however will require a comprehensive and holistic policy agenda with significant complementarities among the major policy reforms While the study tells a rich and coherent story about development patterns in South African townships and points to some broad policy directions its research and analysis will generally need to be deepened before being translated into direct policy action Urbanization and Industrialization for Africa's Transformation , 2017 The 2017 Economic Report on Africa focuses on the linkages between industrialization and urbanization Urbanization is one of Africa's mega trends with profound implications for the social economic environmental dimensions of growth and transformation Theory and experience demonstrate that industrialization and urbanization can be mutually reinforcing processes It is therefore imperative to explore the linkages between urbanization and industrialization given the profound implications for structural transformation in Africa So far current policy narratives and frameworks on structural transformation and industrialization in Africa have largely failed to factor in the spatial and urban dimensions of industrialization and in particular the advantages presented by productivity enhancement and agglomeration effects generated by cities Yet the nexus between urbanization and industrialization is of particular relevance for Agenda 2063 and the 2030 Agenda on Sustainable Development Both agendas recognize urbanization as a critical factor for sustainable development It is also important to consider urbanization and industrialization in light of Africa s engagement with the Third United Nations Conference on Housing and Sustainable Urban Development Habitat III to be held in Quito Ecuador in October 2016 In this context African policy makers have clearly recognized urbanization as an engine of structural transformation for inclusive and sustainable growth
