Chapter I

After lights out, all the animals gather in the big barn to hear old Major communicate his strange dream of the previous night. Before doing so, he imparts his life learnings: that the existence of animals is one of toil and drudgery and that Man is the enemy; if animals are to ever achieve better lives then they must unite against Man. ### Power and Control

Power means to many things:

- political power and government;
- strength, resistance and physical prowess;
- knowledge and wisdom (power to the people).

Power is not in itself a bad thing, but with great power comes great responsibility... who might oppress you, must first oppress them. Napoleon knows what animals the threat of power will do to them. He knows that if they are not happy, if they are not strong, if they are not free, then they will be a threat to his power. He knows that if they are not happy, then they will be a threat to his power.

Power is not in itself a bad thing, but with great power comes great responsibility... who might oppress you, must first oppress them. Napoleon knows what animals the threat of power will do to them. He knows that if they are not happy, if they are not strong, if they are not free, then they will be a threat to his power. He knows that if they are not happy, then they will be a threat to his power.

It is ironic that Napoleon gains absolute power, which has been the most obvious power.

Context

As the novel opens, Napoleon is the most powerful animal in the farm. He is the one who has taken control of the farm and is the one who is responsible for the animals' lives. He is the one who has taken control of the farm and is the one who is responsible for the animals' lives.
