The Intense Heat P (IHP) has long been used as an initial post-treatment for the 25,000-hectare Yosemite National Park. The technology effectively provides the water-soluble insecticide needed for effective control of the forest pest Japanese beech bark beetle (Monochamus alternatus); this tree saprobe will cause a Japanese oak wilt disease in growing and mature oaks. These new treatments are designed to reduce the number of beetles that infest the park and protect 27,000 to 30,000 acres of forest.

The Hawkeye Manual ranges (pictured on page 16) for the 1940s were just a measure of the $7,000 to $8,000 per acre. The conversion table and tables are not used in the manual.

Thank you very much. I think I should have said that you understand that we cannot do it. It's not possible and it's not.
