

An isolated limestone hill near Ruqia Lumpur. Compare this hill with the limestone features shown in Chapter 7. Johnston Pennington

The Influence of Rock Types on Landscape

The appearance and characteristic features of land-forms are greatly influenced by the underlying rock type. Softer rocks like clay and shale are worn down much faster than harder rocks like granite.

Within West Malaysia, the mountain granites form the high ground of the Main Range and the Eastern Range, where several peaks rise to over 2,000 feet. The landscape is one of smooth slopes and rounded hill-tops. The highest peak in West Malaysia, Gunung Tahan (7,186 feet) is composed of some more resistant quartzites. Shales, schists and sandstones, being less resistant, form the much lower, rounded hills. Notice that sediments form the plains. The limestone, volcanic horizons of their permeability, form prominent steep-sided hills such as those near Ipoh and in Perak.

Earth Movements and the Major Landforms

The face of the earth is constantly being reshaped by the agents of denudation—running water, rain, frost, sun, wind, glaciers and waves, so that the present landforms are very varied and diverse. But these agents only modify the pattern of mountains, plateaus and plains which have been moulded by movements of the earth's crust.

Since the dawn of geological time, no less than nine orogenic or mountain building movements have taken place, folding and fracturing the earth's crust. Some of them occurred in Pre-Cambrian times between 600-1,500 million years ago. The three more recent orogenies are the Caledonian, Hercynian and Alpine. The Caledonian about 420 million years ago raised the mountains of Scandinavia and Scotland, and is represented in North America. These ancient mountains have been worn down and no longer exhibit the striking forms that they must once have had. In a later period, during the Hercynian earth movements about 240 million years ago, were formed such ranges as the Ural Mountains, the Pyrenees and Welsh Highlands in Britain, the Harz Mountains in Germany, the Appalachians in America as well as the high plateaus of Siberia and China. These mountains have also been reduced in size by the various sculpturing forces.

We are now living in an era very close to the last of the major orogenic movements of the earth, the Alpine, about 50 million years ago. Young fold mountain ranges were buckled up and pushed on a gigantic scale. Being the most recently formed, these ranges, such as the Alps, Himalayas, Andes and Rockies (shown in Fig. 17) are the loftiest and the most imposing. Their peaks are sometimes several miles high. But the time will come when these lofty ranges will be lowered like those that existed before them. From the eroded materials, new rocks will be formed, later to be uplifted to form the next generation of mountains.

Types of Mountains

Mountains make up a large proportion of the earth's surface. Based on their mode of formation, five main types of mountains can be distinguished. 1. Fold mountains. These mountains are by far the most widespread and also the most important. They are caused by large-scale earth movements when strata are set up in the earth's crust. Such stresses may be due to the increased load of the overlying rocks, flow movements in the mantle, magma intrusions into the crust, or the expansion or contraction of some part of the earth. When such stresses are initiated, the rocks are subjected to compressive forces that produce wrinkling of

Fig. 17 Structural divisions of the earth.

Folding along the lines of weakness. As illustrated in Fig. 18(a) and (b) folding effectively shortens the earth's crust, coming from the original level surface a series of 'waves'. The upfolded waves are called anticlines and the troughs or downfolds are synclines. The formation of up- and downfolds closely resembles that of the wrinkles of a table-cloth when it is pushed from either one or both sides of the table.

In the great fold mountains of the world such as the Himalayas, Rockies, Andes and Alps, due to the complexity of the compressional forces, the folds developed much more complicated forms. When the crest of a fold is pushed too far, an overfold is formed (Fig. 19). If it is pushed still further, it becomes a recumbent fold (Fig. 19). In extreme cases, fractures may occur in the crust, so that the upper part of the recumbent fold slides forward over the lower part along a thrust plane, forming an overthrust fold. The over-riding portion of the thrust fold is termed a nappe (Fig. 19). Since the rock strata have been elevated to great heights, sometimes measurable in miles, fold mountains may be called mountains of elevation. The fold mountains are also closely associated with volcanic activity. They contain many active volcanoes, especially in the Chinese-Pacific fold mountain system. They also contain rich mineral resources such as tin, copper, gold and petroleum.

Fig. 18 (a) The horizontal strata of the earth's crust before folding. (b) Compression produces the great forming fold mountains.
