Dwelling in Days Foregone Weronika Łaszkiewicz, Zbigniew Maszewski, 2016-04-26 This volume brings together papers that examine American literary texts and cultural phenomena as manifestations and/or expressions of nostalgia. Inspired by Svetlana Boym's seminal study The Future of Nostalgia (2001), the authors of the sixteen chapters demonstrate that this sentiment proves to be a useful key in the process of opening up new interpretive vistas and enabling new critical insights. The experience that comes under scrutiny in these texts is informed by the fundamental division into a certain present which is the domain of insatiability and a certain past, the locus of a homeness often irretrievably lost.

Methods for Teaching Travel Literature and Writing Eileen Groom, 2005 The contributors to Methods for Teaching Travel Literature and Writing explore the world and self, discuss how and why they have integrated travel literature and writing into their courses. Subjects range from the study of travel literature, granting insight into how travel authors such as Bill Bryson and Paul Theroux convince readers to buy into their worlds and reflect the readers' positions in society, to contemplating the meanings of the words traveler and tourist. Other chapters examine how actual traveling can shape students' writing and vice versa, whereas still others address how the study of the genre and actually writing it promotes interdisciplinarity.
