Feudal Europe's Religious Influences

Directions: Read the paragraphs below and study the map carefully. Then answer the questions that follow.

The influence of the Latin Church—the Roman Catholic Church—grew in western Europe after 500. By 1000, at the end of the age of migrations, the Church's vision of a spiritual kingdom in feudal Europe was nearly realized.

A sign of the spread of Roman Christianity in western Europe was the increased presence of churches. The population of the continent was increasing rapidly—from around 10 million in 500 to 22 million in 1000—and the need to accommodate all the new established—and new—in religious buildings.

It was one out of over 100 million Christians, by 1000, mostly of the Celtic region had sided with Rome, as did that of Hungary around 1000. Large sections of Scandinavia adopted the Latin Church by 1000. In the 10th century, Ireland became the "Island of saints." Then, between 1000 and 1050, Ireland helped bring England under the influence of Roman Christianity.

However, in 1054, in far eastern Europe, the prince of Kiev received baptism from the Eastern Orthodox, or Byzantine, Church, as evidence to the north had been in the eighth century. Disputes between the teachings of Christianity—headed by Constantinople and Rome—would soon separate the two churches.
