

| Variable                 | Method  | How will it effect the rate of fall?   |
|--------------------------|---|--|
| Surface area             | This variable can be changed by making circles with different radius              | The rate of decent should become faster as the surface area becomes smaller due to less air resistance   |
| Mass                     | The mass of the parachute can be increased by adding extra weight                 | The larger the mass of the parachute the faster it should fall to the ground   |
| Material                 | This can be changed by making parachutes with different materials                 | The type of material should effect the rate of decent and make it fall faster or slower  |
| Height                   | The height from which the parachute is dropped                                    | The higher the parachute is dropped from the ground the longer it should take to reach the ground. The lower it is dropped the faster it should reach the ground |
| Condition of environment | This can be changed by dropping the parachute in different conditions. i.e. windy | This should effect the descent of the parachute because there might be more or less wind or no wind at all   |

Development of Methods for Assessment of Gliding Parachute Applications ,1982 In order to assess the possible utility of gliding parachutes it was necessary to develop a set of methods for predicting behavior of gliding parachutes The extent of agreement between simulation and flight data indicates that the primary factors included in the longitudinal stability analysis and in the 6DOF simulation are correct Although the stability analysis predicts only steady state behavior it forms the basis required for analysis of dynamic behavior in the body fixed XZ plane The agreement seen in descent rate would not be possible with an invalid stability model Of course in turning flight during the response immediately following the deflection other factors such as the assumed spanwise distribution of lift and drag become predominant The agreement in yaw rate best illustrates correctness of this aspect of the 6DOF model The mechanics driving motion during a spin are quite difficult to understand however the agreement shown in the descent rate indicates that the mass ratios assumed are accurate and further justifies the assumption of spanwise distribution of lift and drag In further development activities on gliding parachute systems the 6DOF model will serve to guide exploratory work and will be updated for more accurate application to different canopies and to larger systems Flight Test Guide Canada.
