Interventional Magnetic Resonance Imaging Jörg F. Debatin, Gerhard Adam, 2012-12-06 One of the most amazing and spectacular developments in modern radiology has been the rapid growth and expansion of so called interventional radiology which can also be described as minimally invasive therapy guided by radiological imaging Many applications of this method are now widely in use in different organs particularly in the vascular system Everybody is well aware of the shortcomings and drawbacks of the radiological modalities currently used for guiding minimally invasive procedures Ultrasound although it has the advantage of being absolutely harmless to the patient and the operator cannot be used for many procedures because it does not provide the precise anatomical information needed for a safe performance of these procedures Rontgen rays provide superb anatomical insight to guide delicate manipulations inside the human body but as operations tend to become longer and more complicated the radiation dose for patients as well as for operators is becoming an increasing source of concern It is therefore logical that we should explore the possibilities for interventional radiological procedures provided by the latest imaging modality magnetic resonance imaging taking advantage of the specific physical properties of this method and the absence of ionizing radiation It soon became evident that this new approach represents a tremendous challenge involving the development of new hardware and software new catheters and other material that can be used in a magnetic environment etc

Remote Sensing Digital Image Analysis John A. Richards, 2012-12-06 Possibly the greatest change confronting the practitioner and student of remote sensing in the period since the first edition of this text appeared in 1986 has been the enormous improvement in accessibility to image processing technology Falling hardware and software costs combined with an increase in functionality through the development of extremely versatile user interfaces has meant that even the user unskilled in computing now has immediate and ready access to powerful and flexible means for digital image analysis and enhancement An understanding at algorithmic level of the various methods for image processing has become therefore even more important in the past few years to ensure the full capability of digital image processing is utilised This period has also been a busy one in relation to digital data supply Several nations have become satellite data gatherers and providers using both optical and microwave technology Practitioners and researchers are now faced therefore with the need to be able to process imagery from several sensors together with other forms of spatial data This has been driven to an extent by developments in Geographic Information Systems GIS which in turn have led to the appearance of newer image processing procedures as adjuncts to more traditional approaches

Mundt, John C. Roeske, 2010-12-31 Image Guided Radiation Therapy IGRT is a true revolution in the field of radiation oncology IGRT provides the unprecedented means of conforming dose to the shape of the target tissues in 3 dimensions reducing the risk of complications thereby improving the quality of life of irradiated patients Moreover IGRT provides the means to deliver higher than conventional doses thus improving the chance of cure in these patients Despite its established benefits several barriers exist to the widespread clinical implementation of IGRT In the past great concerns existed regarding the large capital outlay needed for both software and hardware This barrier is less relevant today given the increased reimbursements possible with IGRT Today the most significant barrier is education IGRT is a fundamentally new approach to both treatment planning and delivery Adoption of the IGRT approach entails new ways of thinking in regard to patient selection treatment planning and quality assurance measures Unfortunately apart from a few University based short courses limited resources are available for the physician and physicist interested in learning IGRT

Numerical Taxonomy Joseph Felsenstein, 2013-06-29 The NATO Advanced Study Institute on Numerical Taxonomy took place on the 4th 16th of July 1982 at the Kur und Kongresshotel Residenz in Bad Windsheim Federal Republic of Germany This volume is the proceedings of that meeting and contains papers by over two thirds of the participants in the Institute Numerical taxonomy has been attracting increased attention from systematists and evolutionary biologists It is an area which has been marked by debate and conflict sometimes bitter Happily this meeting took place in an atmosphere of GemUtlichkeit though scarcely of unanimity I believe that these papers will show that there is an increased understanding by each taxonomic school of each others positions This augurs a period in which the debates become more concrete and specific Let us hope that they take place in a scientific atmosphere which has occasionally been lacking in the past Since the order of presentation of papers in the meeting was affected by time constraints I have taken the liberty of rearranging them into a more coherent subject ordering The first group of papers taken from the opening and closing days of the meeting debate philosophies of classification The next two sections have papers on congruence clustering and ordination A notable concern of these participants is the comparison and testing of classifications This has been missing from many previous discussions of numerical classification     The Land Our Future Allan Grant Anderson,Paul Worthing Williams,1980     Energy Research Abstracts ,1982     NASA Technical Memorandum ,
