Visualisation and Epistemological Access to Mathematics Education in Southern Africa Marc Schäfer, 2023-04-27 This book demonstrates that using visualisation processes in mathematics education can help to enhance teaching and learning and bridge the inequality gap that exists between well resourced and under resourced schools in Southern Africa Drawing on classroom research conducted in the Southern African region it examines how epistemological access in a context of gross inequality can be constructively addressed by providing research based solutions and recommendations The book outlines the visualisation process as an integral but often overlooked process of mathematics teaching and learning It goes beyond the traditional understanding of visualisation processes such as picture forming and using tools and considers visualisation processes that are semiotic in nature and includes actions such as gestures in combination with language It adds value to the visualisation in mathematics education research discourse and deliberation in Africa With a unique focus on Southern Africa and open avenues for further research and collaboration in the region it will be a highly relevant reading for researchers academics and post graduate students of mathematics education comparative education and social justice education

How Children Learn Math Nancy Krasa, Karen Tzanetopoulos, Colleen Maas, 2022-10-25 Written for pre service and in service educators as well as parents of children in preschool through grade five this book connects research in cognitive development and math education to offer an accessibly written and practical introduction to the science of elementary math learning Structured according to children s mathematical development How Children Learn Math systematically reviews and synthesizes the latest developmental research on mathematical cognition into accessible sections that explain both the scientific evidence available and its practical classroom application Written by an author team with decades of collective experience in cognitive learning research clinical learning evaluations and classroom experience working with both teachers and children this amply illustrated text offers a powerful resource for understanding children s mathematical development from quantitative intuition to word problems and helps readers understand and identify math learning difficulties that may emerge in later grades Aimed at pre service and in service teachers and educators with little background in cognitive development the book distills important findings in cognitive development into clear accessible language and practical suggestions The book therefore serves as an ideal text for pre service early childhood elementary and special education teachers as well as early career researchers or as a professional development resource for in service teachers supervisors and administrators school psychologists homeschool parents and other educators

Mathematics, Affect and Learning Peter Grootenboer, Margaret Marshman, 2015-10-17 This book examines the beliefs attitudes values and emotions of students in Years 5 to 8 aged 10 to 14 years about mathematics and mathematics education Fundamentally this book focuses on the development of affective views and responses towards mathematics and mathematics learning Furthermore it seems that students develop their more negative views of mathematics during the middle school years Years 5 to 8 and so here we concentrate on students in this critical period The book is based on a number of empirical studies including an enquiry undertaken with 45 children in Years 5 and 6 in one school a large scale quantitative study undertaken with students from a range of schools across diverse communities in New Zealand and two related small scale studies with junior secondary students in Australia This book brings substantial empirically based evidence to the widely held perception that many students have negative views of mathematics and these affective responses develop during the middle years of school The data for this book were collected with school students and students who were actually engaged in learning mathematics in their crucial middle school years The findings reported and discussed here are relevant for researchers and mathematics educators policy makers and curriculum developers and teachers and school principals engaged in the teaching of mathematics

Chinese Students in UK Further Education Rosemary A. Reynolds, 2017-12-15 Chinese students in the UK have been increasing in number for many years yet competition from other Western educators and increasing investment in China's own education system has led to concern that UK institutions may soon see a decline in their market share Dr Reynolds addresses this issue in Chinese Students in UK Further Education by attempting to understand students' experiences from their perspective Beginning with an exploration of why these students choose to come and study in the UK and why they are coming at younger ages the book goes on to discuss topics such as risk technology and diversity in order to understand which factors have the greatest influence on where they choose to study and whether they choose to remain at an institution Drawing on data from two different education institutions providers of GCSE A level programmes for students aged 16-18 years Dr Reynolds attempts to understand what these students experience during their studies how they manage new social relationships and whether upon course completion they achieved the results they desired at the outset Moreover the book aims to ascertain whether the students feel in hindsight that the decision to risk investing in UK further education was right and what they might communicate about UK study to contacts in China and elsewhere The book examines what further education institutions do well and where they might improve to help develop Chinese students' educational experiences As such it will be essential reading for academics researchers and postgraduates in the fields of further education sociology of education international and intercultural education and mobility studies
