Effect of Daphnia swarm density on the attack rate of a predator fish, the stickleback

Introduction

For animals, living in groups offer many advantages. One of them is the protection against predators. For example, more individuals there are in a group, the greater the chances of detecting the approach of a predator. Also, the more individual there are, the harder it may be to the predator to concentrate on just one and successfully catch it. In the same way that it is difficult for a person to catch a ball when a dozen are thrown at him or her at the same time, it may be confusing for a predator to capture a particular prey when a great number of them are milling around overtaking one another or moving in all directions.

On the other hand, dense groups may be more easy to detect by predators and may therefore draw more attacks upon themselves. Therefore, it may be hard to predict whether prey should aggregate in dense groups or in less dense ones. It is also unclear what the predator itself should do: go for the dense group because of great number of prey there, or for the small group because of the ease of catching prey without getting confused.

In this experiment, we tested whether the three-spined stickleback, Gasterosteus aculeatus, which is a predator of the Daphnia (also called the water flea), prefers to attack big or small groups of its prey.

Method

In the Fall, we captured six three-spined sticklebacks with minnow traps in a small tidal pool along the petitecodiac River near Moncton. Four were females and two were males. They were kept together in a 40-liter aquarium filled with freshwater. We also obtained Daphnia by filtering water from a freshwater pond. Some of these Daphnia were given to the sticklebacks to get them used to this kind of prey.. All tests took place in a separate 40 liter aquarium covered with gravel at the bottom and with the water temperature varying between 15 and 20. One of the six sticklebacks was placed in this aquarium and given time to get used to these new surroundings. Then a row of three test tubes were lowered into the aquarium. Each tube was 10cm long, 2 cm wide, and separated from its neighbour by 15 cm. One tube contained 40 Daphnia, the second contained 10 Daphnia, and the last one contained 2 Daphnia.

Report Writing for Criminal Justice Professionals Larry S. Miller,John T. Whitehead,2010-11-24 So much of the process of criminal justice depends on good documentation and criminal justice professionals can spend as much as 50 75% of their time writing up administrative and research reports Much of the legal process depends on the careful documentation that records crucial information And yet most of these law enforcement security corrections and probation and parole officers have not had adequate training in how to provide a well written accurate brief and complete report Report Writing for Criminal Justice Professionals provides practical advice on report writing with specific writing samples and guidelines The authors go beyond the routine English grammar approach to deal with the difficult but often ignored problem of documentation that will hold up in court Important concepts are emphasized with related checklists forms and pull out chapter tests The material is organized into three sections The Nature of Report Writing The Mechanics of Report Writing and The Modernization of Report Writing NEW TO THIS EDITION Updated and revised with new material on forensics and scientific reports crime reporting common errors in forensic reports and automation of report writing Appendixes are thoroughly revised with new examples of reporting forms worksheets and reports including a sample forensic lab report and presentence investigation report Text complemented by numerous examples sample reports and tools Each chapter concludes with a sample test for the reader to self evaluate learning Appendixes include model reports examples of agency instructions for completing report forms and selected readings

Report Writing for Crime Scene Investigators Laura Pazarena,Michael Kessler,Amy Watroba,2022-06-29 Report Writing for Crime Scene Investigators provides students with the tools to write effective crime scene reports Students looking to break into the field of crime scene investigations often take courses in report writing but the textbooks available are commonly geared toward general law enforcement and first responders However none of the books on the market focus on the craft of effective informative writing with graphic crime scene specific considerations in mind While falling under law enforcement's purview crime scene investigations fall within the forensic science field and as such the reporting required is more technical and often more scientific in nature than the average police report. Due to the lack of published resources and guidance in this critical area there is no standard that currently exists for vital function within crime scene and investigative circles and often the subject is given short shrift. This creates wide discrepancies among what students are being taught. This book is the first of its kind to provide students and those professionals and agencies in need of a blueprint with a resource to teach them the various types of reports and how to refer to scenarios and specific types of evidence to ensure that the report holds up under the process of an investigation and for use within the courts. Key features: Outlines the key distinctions between police style reports and crime scene style reports and writing. Explains how to clearly and accurately provide an accounting and description of a variety of evidence recovered from a scene. Details how to best organize the report in a logical manner and sequence including the various components of the crime scene report. Presents an explanation of the information that should be included in the report and the rationale behind its importance for testimonial purposes. Report Writing for Crime Scene Investigators provides to the reader the fundamentals of effective report writing for the active field. Crime Scene Investigator Coverage includes the necessary steps to thoroughly document scenes and evidence from the time the CSI receives the call until the time the CSI testifies in court. In addition to the student market the book will be a welcome resource for professional crime scene investigators, attorneys and as a reference and standard for professional training programs.

Report Writing for Criminal Justice Professionals Larry Miller, John Whitehead, 2017-09-14. The criminal justice process is dependent on accurate documentation. Criminal justice professionals can spend 50-75 percent of their time writing administrative and research reports. The information provided in these reports is crucial to the functioning of our system of justice. Report Writing for Criminal Justice Professionals Sixth Edition provides practical guidance with specific writing samples and guidelines for providing strong reports. Most law enforcement, security, corrections and probation and parole officers have not had adequate training in how to provide well-written, accurate, brief and complete reports. Report Writing for Criminal Justice Professionals covers everything officers need to learn from basic English grammar to the difficult but often ignored problem of creating documentation that will hold up in court. This new edition includes updates to reference materials and citations as well as further supporting examples and new procedures in digital and electronic report writing.
