Toward a Recovery of Nineteenth Century Farming Handbooks

Titles are centered and written in 12-point, Times New Roman font. The title is not bolded, underlined, or italicized.

While researching texts written about nineteenth century farming, I found a few authors who published books about the literature of nineteenth century farming, particularly agricultural journals, newspapers, pamphlets, and brochures. These authors often placed the farming literature they were studying into an historical context by discussing the important events in agriculture of the year in which the literature was published (see Demaree, for example). However, while these authors discuss journals, newspapers, pamphlets, and brochures, I could not find much discussion about another important source of farming knowledge: farming handbooks. My goal in this paper is to bring this source into the agricultural literature discussion by connecting three agricultural handbooks from the nineteenth century with nineteenth century agricultural history.

To achieve this goal, I have organized my paper into four main sections, two of which have sub-sections. In the first section, I provide an account of three important events in nineteenth century agricultural history: population and technological changes, the distribution of scientific new knowledge, and farming's influence on education. In the second section, I discuss three nineteenth century farming handbooks in connection with the important events described in the first section. I end my paper with a third section that offers research questions that could be answered in future versions of this paper at references once they learn the mnemonics for both. By following a few simple steps the dreaded research paper can be tamed. After teaching freshman English for sixteen years I was delighted to use Paula Porter's 7 Steps to Researching and Writing an APA formatted Research Paper for my Composition I and II classes. This book provides instruction in database and Internet research as well as all the stages of the writing process, the most daunting task for college writers. Porter has combined higher level thinking skills of analysis, synthesis, and evaluation with well explained strategies in steps that lead to success for those who follow them. Dr. Diane Strauser Alvarez Porter has broken down a dense set of information into carefully constructed units designed to facilitate students' easy application of the requirements for APA format and essay writing. Her concise and methodical approach to the material is a boon for any writing course, and her approach utilizes her experience both as a student required to write in this citation style and as an instructor who has encountered the front lines with her students. Simple in its diction, it is not simplistic in what it affords for student success. AnneMarie Fowler, English and Literature Faculty
